THE PROHIBITION PARTY

The New York Independent thinks it probable [illegible] vote will go to the prohibition [illegible] this year than ever before. [illegible] platform, party [illegible] declares that the [illegible] of liquors [illegible] abolished. [illegible] the manufacture [illegible] would bear great [illegible] the plank which [illegible] the men [illegible] beverages in the [illegible] the territories [illegible] conflict is in the states [illegible] the District of Columbia [illegible] until at least half the [illegible] in their own [illegible] first in the states [illegible] The nomination of [illegible] would have been [illegible] and declares [illegible] farcical to have [illegible] recommendation was [illegible] wrapped [illegible]

[illegible] CHILDREN

The San Francisco Monitor explains how it [illegible] of Catholic children and youth [illegible] falling away from the Catholic faith. In the first place, it says, the child [illegible] parents is frequently sent to the [illegible] for five cents worth of beer [illegible] sent to a public school where [illegible] the popish domination [illegible] innocent and helpless [illegible] the Our Father [illegible] from the priest of the parish. Then it is placed at work in some factory where [illegible] is read out of bad books and immoral illustrated papers, and where blasphemy is heard out of bad men's mouths, until after a few months training the once Catholic child has only the knowledge of God through the blasphemous use of his holy name. This is but an epitome of the fate that befalls thousands of the children of Catholic parents who deliberately place obstacles in the way of their offspring, so that it is almost impossible for them to grow up Catholics. * * * The world is full of just such Catholic parents. We see them coming out of the Black Maria nearly every morning in the [illegible] we see their children carried off in the police van to the house of correction, the industrial school or the Magdalen asylum; and we can only hope that some miraculous intervention [illegible] stay the tide of crime that is desolating so many Catholic homes and damning so many Catholic souls. The same causes lead to the same results in every city of Christendom. The church cannot control those who cannot control themselves. * * * [illegible] to the mass to those who are too drunk [illegible] to end—ineffectual [illegible] to the seared soul of the Catholic [illegible] whose church is the dance on [illegible] and whose prayer book is the Police Gazette.

ON VERNON CLEVELAND

The [illegible] Congregationalist refers to the charges of [illegible] and licentiousness [illegible] the democratic candidate for the presidency [illegible] Common decency, the morals [illegible] regard for the sacredness of home [illegible] the very main abutment of our nation's [illegible] require that the president [illegible]—our foremost representative [illegible]—should be a man of pure private as well as public integrity. If these [illegible] it ought to be easy to show the fact. They are definite and personal [illegible] If they are improved then the [illegible] and the party which nominated Governor Cleveland should demand that he withdraw [illegible] his name now leads.

The language of the Congregationalist on [illegible] its expressed sympathy with the so-called independent republicans who attacked against Mr Blaine's [illegible] and advised a vote for Cleveland [illegible]

The [illegible] the charges of gross immorality made against Governor Cleveland are true [illegible] he has not a ghost of a chance of [illegible] president. The [illegible] will not exalt a [illegible] in their gift. [illegible] all our [illegible] the great wing [illegible] down before [illegible] this great orator [illegible] and statesman failed thus of his [illegible] Governor Cleveland cannot have a [illegible] hope that his indorsers will be [illegible]

[illegible] BOARDING HOUSE.

The young man whose thoughts last spring lightly turned [illegible] are now less lightly turning to the subject of bread and butter and house rent. These subjects are perhaps less exciting, but certainly more wholesome. The sooner [illegible] realized that life is not made up of ice cream and cigarettes and that courting is only a pretty portal to something better the sooner will the subject of house rent assume its proper charm. The curse of our American life is too much boarding house. It is hard perhaps for the young wife to settle down to the sober baking of bread that may—indeed is likely to—be a little heavy. The young man, perhaps, finds it a little wearing to have to do many little things about the house when his day's work is done at the store or office. But any amount of worry and anxiety is better than the unwholesome air of the average boarding house. If the young couple start in on the boarding house plan they are likely to continue it from mere laziness. Even when the income would permit of a modest house the ease and company of their life with others covers up the roughness, the vulgarity and even coarseness, that boarding, except under exceptional circumstances, almost surely entails. The gossip, jesting and idle talk that must be heard and shared in are all bad. All danger is not escaped when the home is started, but it is in your power to control it and if you are wise it will be far above what the general boarding house is in point of tone, and God will not be left out. We asked a young man the other day if he had any sort of spiritual life amid his business cares. "No," replied, "I am boarding." It is generally with a single man impossible to manage otherwise, but let it never be the final wish or the chosen mode when a house even with cares is within reach.—Christian Hour

LIEUTENANT HAZEN ANOTHER STATEMENT

[illegible] Details of the Work of the Expedition at Lady Franklin Bay—The Retreat to the South and the Rescue

NEW YORK, August 13.—[Special.]—The Times [illegible] Until the death of Surgeon Pavey of the [illegible] party, three weeks before the rescue came, [illegible] was cut from most of the dead bodies for use [illegible] survivors as food and it was removed by a [illegible] skilled in dissecting. Few bodies had fleshy [illegible] cut away entire, but with a majority the [illegible] had been so well done that a casual observer would not have suspected without other evidence [illegible] which there was plenty, however, that the survivors had been reduced to cannibalism and had for [illegible] time been subsisting principally on the bodies of their dead brothers. Is it not a coincidence that the body of Pavey with those of two others who died after him should have been reported as [illegible] away? With the surgeon gone the scalpel would not be used. Before the bodies had been left [illegible] little marks of the terrible work done after [illegible] the survivors were forced to dismember the bodies and denude them of flesh in a way that [illegible] nothing but bones, so these unfortunates were [illegible] buried in an ice floe and washed away.

TERRIBLE PRECAUTIONS

In most of the bodies the incision was made from [illegible] downward below the ribs. The scalpel [illegible] passed along under the skin, and the flap [illegible] carefully laid back on either side. The flesh [illegible] removed from the ribs, the skin was pulled [illegible] place and the edges were carefully joined [illegible] there was no external evidence left of the [illegible] work but a dark line. The thighs were [illegible] in the same manner, the skin being replaced [illegible] the fleshless bones. The legs were stripped [illegible] ankle joints and the arms to the wrists. The [illegible] feet and face were not mutilated.

This was a work requiring skill, and must have [illegible] long and careful operation. No one in the [illegible] except the surgeon could so skillfully remove [illegible] from the human body and leave the skin in [illegible]. How Pavey met his death has not been explained, but it was probably by the knife. With [illegible] gone, and every day the pangs of hunger growing more unbearable, caution was relaxed and the survivors ate of human flesh however they could [illegible] it. It was the doctrine of the survival of the [illegible] that ruled. All sense of honor or feeling [illegible] been lost.

THE RESCUE

It was Sergeant Long who first saw the launch and [illegible] down the snow and ice to the Greely rescue [illegible]. His face and beard were covered with blood [illegible] a duck which he had shot and had been eating [illegible]. It is stated that he stopped to conceal half of [illegible] body of the bird before sliding down the snow [illegible] the strongest of the party and despite the [illegible] gale was able to walk to the launch. Sergeant Fredericks had considerable strength left and [illegible] on board the Thetis almost unaided. After so [illegible] months in absolute Arctic regions after so much [illegible] and passing through such scenes of horror [illegible] said that the men could not stand upright [illegible] traveled about on their hands and knees over [illegible] and ice and when Sergeant Brainard was [illegible] on board the Thetis his knees were found [illegible] to the thickness of over half an inch. In [illegible] of such horrors it was wondered by the [illegible] party how Greely and his few companions [illegible] reason. About their camp were scattered [illegible] of the dead and mutilated bodies were half [illegible] in the little burial plot back of the tent [illegible] that made them shudder.

DEATHS FROM SCURVY

[illegible] how many died of scurvy accounts differ. [illegible] reported seventeen as having died of starvation. Sergeant Cross, the first of the expiring party [illegible], passed away last new year's day. According to Schley's report he did not die of scurvy but [illegible] use of liquor. He would drink anything [illegible] suspicion of alcohol about it, even paint [illegible] love for liquor was so strong among some at [illegible] the relief party that the carpenter, using [illegible] alcohol with which to mix shellac, was obliged [illegible] it as closely as his money. Sergeant Connell [illegible] of the rescued, says Cross died of scurvy January 18. At St. Johns it was reported that [illegible] the two men lost on April 19 died of scurvy [illegible] several dead of scurvy and Henry shot all in [illegible] did not die of starvation. It is feared that others [illegible] death that Henry did. It is known that [illegible] were of frequent occurrence in the [illegible] camp. Pavy was on trial no less than three [illegible]. There were dissensions among the men, and [illegible] condition became more desperate they [illegible], until weak in body and mind by privation [illegible] he could for the others, but at last the [illegible] for life became sing[illegible] it was each man for [illegible]

LIEUTENANT GREELY INTERVIEWED

[illegible] August 16.—In an interview at Portsmouth to-day Lieutenant Greely said, as to reports [illegible] in the expedition: "In regard to the [illegible] of two factions, with Lieutenant Kislingbury [illegible] of the opposition, I will say it is totally [illegible] having no foundation whatever. Trouble between Kislingbury and myself occurred in 1881, the [illegible] of the expedition. He desired to be relieved from duty and I, not wishing to retain a man [illegible] his will, although I had the power so to do [illegible] his liberty. It is my impression that he [illegible] to return to the United States. He went [illegible] but the Proteus was sunk and he returned to duty. I treated him as though nothing [illegible] happened and when Lockwood died I gave him [illegible] second place in the expedition."

"What do you say about the condition of Kislingbury's body?" asked the reporter.

"This is new and horrible news to me. All [illegible] later disclosures and terrible charges come [illegible] with awful suddenness. I can truthfully [illegible] I have suffered more mental anguish the [illegible] days than I did in all my sojourn at the [illegible] when the chances were a hundred to one [illegible] me. I can but repeat that if there was any [illegible] and there now seems no doubt of it [illegible] eating was done in secret and entirely [illegible] my knowledge and contrary to my discipline."

"I make no stronger denial. I have demanded an [illegible] and it will come in time, but I can [illegible] more than I have already stated. All [illegible] and Kislingbury's diary, Lockwood's [illegible] and in fact every scrap of information relating [illegible] the expedition are in charge of the war department at Washington. The crew of the Thetis [illegible] that the body of the last dead, Schneider, [illegible] mutilated in any way and the fact that we [illegible] alive in the hopeless state we were in [illegible] convince anybody that we were not cannibals. Since my return from Newburyport every [illegible] my men has called upon me. They came in a [illegible] and assured me emphatically that they knew [illegible] about the condition of the bodies of their [illegible] comrades and each solemnly swore he was [illegible]. Perhaps those who died last fed upon the [illegible] of those who died before, but all this is supposition. I can but answer for myself and for my [illegible] to the party. For days and weeks I lay on my [illegible] unable to move. If in my enfeebled condition [illegible] more of my men fed upon human flesh it was [illegible] my control and certainly beyond my knowledge. I know I have been criticised for not telling the fact of the shooting of Henry as soon [illegible] arrived at St. Johns, but you must remember I [illegible] a wretched condition of body and mind. I [illegible] a quandary whether I should be tried for [illegible] as Henry was shot on my own responsibility [illegible] not by orders of a regular court martial."

TALK AMONG ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Among army [illegible] officers the subject of cannibalism among [illegible] party continues to be the principal topic of [illegible]. Hazen last night pronounced as an [illegible] falsehood the statement that he had paid [illegible] pilot, $125 not to testify before the Proteus [illegible] of inquiry, and that through his blunder and [illegible] a greater portion of the stores that [illegible] returned from the relief expedition were stolen [illegible]

[illegible] the members of the Neptune expedition, [illegible] attention was called to Hazen's denial of [illegible] by a reporter to-day, reiterated the charge [illegible] yesterday and said he had seen the check that [illegible] received from the disbursing officers of the [illegible] service for $120, and knew that the government [illegible] him nothing.

A MISTAKE MADE

The general feeling among army and navy people [illegible] that a great mistake was made in trying to [illegible] up the fact that cannibalism was practiced by [illegible] party. They say it was bound to leak out [illegible], and that it was manifestly the business [illegible] Schley to report immediately that the [illegible] of the Greely party had been found in a death [illegible] starvation having proved inevitable, [illegible] the survivors had been compelled to [illegible] life by devouring their dead comrades. This [illegible] would have increased the popular horror, [illegible] sympathy. The whole story coming to [illegible] portion would have justified another and [illegible] have been no hidden and hideous [illegible] be gradually exposed and magnified by scandal mongers.

AN OFFICER'S VIEWS

Lieutenant Powell, who went to Portsmouth to [illegible] the Greely party, said to-day that he did not [illegible] story of cannibalism. He lays the blame [illegible] leaking out of the story on Norman. He said [illegible] he believed Greely is honest in his statement [illegible] he knows nothing about cannibalism he is [illegible] that Greely ate part of the human flesh [illegible] knowing it. He says the men shared the [illegible] they had stripped from the bodies of their dead [illegible] with Greely, who was too weak to leave his [illegible] that he ate of it without knowing what it [illegible]. He says the story published of the joy of [illegible] party when they were found is ridiculous. He says that they were all in such a dazed [illegible] that they did not realize that they were [illegible] until they had been given some stimulant [illegible] they began to curse their rescuers for not [illegible] them more food.

THE OBJECTS OF THE GREELY EXPEDITION

[illegible] Aug. 17.—For the purpose of [illegible] some idea of the general nature and probable [illegible] of the scientific observations made by [illegible] Greely, an associated press agent visited [illegible] Saturday. Greely stated that the object of the [illegible] Franklin bay expedition was to establish a [illegible] station, one of thirteen suggested by Lieutenant Weyprecht of Austria, who discovered Franz [illegible] land. Simultaneous observations of all [illegible] phenomena were to be taken. A complete [illegible] that was to be followed was arranged by [illegible] international polar congress, in which [illegible] of thirteen nations took part. The [illegible] in making which the greatest possible [illegible] was to be had, were those of the declination [illegible] of the magnetic needle, temperature [illegible] the air and sea, highest barometer and mean [illegible] rise and fall of tides. Explorations [illegible] merely incidental to the other objects [illegible] expedition was fitted out under the authority [illegible] United States congress. It was composed [illegible] three officers of the army and one acting [illegible] and nineteen enlisted men from the army [illegible] twenty-seven months were put on the [illegible] left St. Johns July 7, 1881, with the party. [illegible] at Disco Island and Upernavik to procure sledges, dogs, skins, and [illegible] Two Esquimaux were added to the party at Proven. A landing was made at Carey Island [illegible] were [illegible] cached at Nares in 1875 [illegible] the Alert were found in good condition.

[illegible] LEAVES THE PARTY

At Littleton Island Greely personally [illegible] the English Arctic mail left by Sir Allen Young in 1876. At Cape Ritter bay, in Kennedy channel, a cache of provisions for use on the retreat was made.

It was the original intention to establish the polar station at Watercourse bay, but heavy masses of dangerous ice rendered Watercourse bay an exceedingly dangerous anchorage. [illegible] the station was there established, the site occupied by the English expedition of 1875. The erection of a house was immediately commenced and stores and equipments landed.

On August 26 came the parting between the Greely party and the men of the Proteus. The little band gathered on the frozen shore and watched the Proteus as she steamed slowly down Lady Franklin bay. On the evening of the same day the temperature sank below the freezing point and the icy Arctic winter was on them in earnest.

The house was finished about a week after the Proteus left. It was named in honor of Senator Conger, Fort Conger. During the first month the cold affected the men no more than at any subsequent time at Fort Conger. Later on, in December, the temperature sank from fifty to sixty-five below zero and so remained for days at a time, but even in that weather the cook's favorite amusement was dancing, bald headed, bare armed and with slippered feet on top of a snow drift. During the day the men dressed in ordinary out[illegible] clothing, but their flannels were very heavy. Five men were generally, for a part of the day, engaged in scientific work under Greely's direction and in the duties of the camp. The remainder were generally at work about one hour a day, but devoted the rest of the day to amusement.

A PLEASANT LIFE

All slept in bunks. The quarters were heated by a large coal stove, the average heat maintained being 50 degrees above zero. Checkers, cards and chess were amusements of the evening. The life, Greely said, was far from a lonely one. Many of the men said they had never passed two happier years than they spent at Fort Conger.

On the 15th of October the sun left them for 135 days, and twilight, varying from half an hour to twenty-four hours, succeeded. For two months it was said that the dial of a watch could not be read by it.

On April 11th the sun came above the horizon and remained there for 35 days [illegible] sufficiently of the midnight sun. During three months stars were visible constantly. The constellations of Orion and the Great Bear were so bright [illegible] The north star looked down from almost overhead.

Standing alone outside of the fort on one of the snow drifts, the nights at once were weirdly grand. To the north the flame of the aurora [illegible] and the bright constellations were all like jewels around a glowing moon. Over everything was a dead silence, so horribly oppressive that man almost is tempted to kill himself [illegible]

The astronomer of the party said that with the naked eye a star of one degree smaller magnitude than can be seen here in the same way [illegible] The moon would remain in sight from eleven to twelve days at a time.

The thermometer registered on June 13th the highest temperature on Lady Franklin bay while we knew during our stay. It was [illegible] degrees above zero. The lowest was in February 1883, [illegible] below.

THE AURORA [illegible]

In this February our mercury froze and remained solid for fifteen days. The mercury in the thermometer invariably rose during storms or high winds. The highest barometer [illegible] slightly above [illegible] inches. The greatest variation [illegible] winter. An electrometer [illegible] used to ascertain the presence of electricity [illegible] but not the slightest result was obtained. The displays of the aurora borealis were very good, but not to be compared with those seen at [illegible] Upernavik. As far as Greely could observe, no crackling sound accompanied the displays and the general shape was that of an arc. The [illegible] was the quarter in which the brightest displays were seen. Nares reported in 1875 that [illegible] was cast by the aurora, but Greely says he did [illegible] observed a shadow cast by it. There were no electrical disturbances save [illegible] the rumbling of distant thunder heard twice, far away to the north.

In the course of tidal observations the fact was discovered that the [illegible] at Lady Franklin bay came from the north while those at Melville bay and Cape Sabine came from the south. The [illegible] of the north [illegible] two degrees warmer than that of the south tide at Cape Sabine. Why this is Greely would not venture to state. He used in measuring the ebb and flow of the tide a fixed gauge, an iron rod planted in the [illegible] The average rise of the spring tide at Lady Franklin bay was found to be eight feet. At Cape Sabine the high [illegible] tide's rise was twelve feet. [illegible] twice during the two years at Lady Franklin bay. The average temperature of the water was twenty-nine degrees above [illegible]

LOCKWOOD'S TRIPS TO THE NORTH

Wolves weighing ninety [illegible] were killed around Fort Conger. There are [illegible] there. Fish are wonderfully [illegible] The greatest surprise of the exploration was the [illegible] from Lake Alexandria, a fresh water lake fifteen feet above the sea level [illegible] four pound salmon.

Vegetation at Lady Franklin bay is about the same as at Cape Sabine and comprises mosses, lichens, willow and saxifrage. The highest velocity of wind was registered during a terrific snow storm—seventy miles an hour.

Lockwood's trip to the north in 1882 and 1883 was productive of most valuable results. Starting on the 19th of May in each year where Dr. Hayes had formerly stood at about the same time of the day, Lockwood from an elevation of 2000 feet, using his strongest glass, and Hayes' and Robeson's channel could [illegible] nothing but ice packs. Here it was that Dr. Hayes claimed to have seen his open polar sea. On the trip of 1882 Lockwood reached the highest latitude ever attained, 83 deg. 25 min. north. This was [illegible] 600 miles directly north of Lady Franklin bay, but to get there he traveled over 1100 miles, open water and broken packs frequently causing him to retrace his steps fifty miles. Lockwood sounded the sea both years between Cape Bryant and Cape Brittania, but could not touch bottom with 115 fathoms of line. Markham a few years before about 100 miles west got bottom at seventy-two fathoms. Lockwood found at his farthest north about the same vegetation as at Lady Franklin bay, but there were no signs of a polar current or an open polar sea.

STOPPED BY AN OPEN CHANNEL

In 1883 he was stopped near Cape Bryant, 125 miles from Lady Franklin, by an open channel extending west to the coast of Grinnell Land. The width of this channel varied from 100 yards to five miles, but on the north the ice pack extended as far as could be seen with a glass. With his supply of provisions the failure of which had caused his return the year before, Lockwood was confident he could have reached 85 degrees north if this open channel had not barred his way.

No fossil remains were discovered on this trip, and the only things found were [illegible] trunks of trees on the southwest coast of Grinnell Land. The only sea animals seen by Lockwood at 81 degrees 35 minutes were walrus and seals, and, strange to say, walrus are not to be found at Lady Franklin bay.

At 83 2/3 the deflection of the magnetic needle was 104 degrees west, more than a quarter of a circle. As far as Lockwood went north the east end of the Greenland coast continued [illegible] Lockwood's new regions he discovered are in the possession [illegible] and are very carefully made.

Although two years at Lady Franklin bay the magnetic needle was never quiet [illegible] in storms.

THE RETREAT TO THE [illegible]

In February 1883 preparations for retreat were made by establishing a depot at Cape Baird, twelve miles to the south. Day after day the anxious men looked off over Lady Franklin bay, expecting the ice to open so they might commence the journey. At last August 19, 1883, the welcome news that the ice was open was brought. All had been made ready and that very day the party embarked in the little steam launch. Behind them they left their dogs, as they could not be taken. Four barrels of pork and some seal oil were left for the animals.

Lady Franklin bay was crossed to Cape Baird, a distance of thirteen miles, and then the western coast of Grinnell land was followed south. Large quantities of heavy ice were met and there was extreme danger every moment that the little launch would be crushed. Several times all the boats were nearly lost. The sufferings of the men were great.

They were never within fifty miles of Cape Sabine. Striking from Cape Hawkes for Bates island the party was caught in an ice pack and frozen in ten miles south, on the floes, suffering horribly from cold. They drifted to within eleven miles of Cape Sabine, and were obliged to abandon the steam launch on September 10th. The pack now remained motionless for three days and several times the party got within two or three miles of Cape Sabine, only to be drifted back by southwest gales. Five seals were killed and eaten while the party were drifting about. Eventually a heavy northwest gale arose and drove them by Cape Sabine within a mile of Brevoort island, but they could not land.

A LANDING FINALLY EFFECTED

September 22 there arose the most terrific gale they had yet seen on the Arctic ocean. Their ice floe was driven hither and thither by the tempest and the waves washed over them again and again, the spray freezing to them and causing intense suffering. Night came on, one of inky blackness. The wind threw the heavy floes together and each after crash warned the men that death was near to them. No man knew what minute the floe might break up and the water engulf them.

The first faint light of dawn showed that little remained of the floe on which they were sea washed. Another was close to them, closer it came, and at last, at the word, the men succeeded in getting upon it. The storm slowly subsided and they gained land at Esquimaux point, near Baird's inlet, on September 29. Here winter quarters were built and scouts were sent to Cape Isabella and Cape Sabine. In a few days they returned. Their report sent a thrill of horror to every heart. Off Cape Isabella and Cape Sabine [illegible] Everyone knew that death must come to nearly all of the party long before a ship of rescue could force its way into Melleville bay. Efforts were made to sustain the spirits of the men by lectures and light readings.

October 15th the party removed to Cape Sabine. January 18th Cross died of scurvy.

THE RESCUE

In April the rations, issued daily, had dwindled to four ounces of meat and six ounces of bread. Man after man died, and all hope had fled, when, on the last day, the blast of a whistle roused the survivors from the lethargy of approaching death.

Lieutenant Greely, when asked as to his ideas upon the probable result of arctic explorations, said: "I do not think the north pole can be reached, unless every circumstance hitherto found to be unfavorable should prove favorable to the party attempting to reach the pole. If it is to be done at all, it will be done by the way of Franz Josef land. It could never be reached by the Jeannette route. That there is an open polar sea I am well nigh certain. This is proved by ice drifting out of Mussell Bay at [illegible] and [illegible] and by [illegible] [illegible] Lady Franklin [illegible]"

VARIOUS POLITICAL MATTERS.

Notes From Many Quarters on the Campaign—East and West

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—A Boston special says: Ex-Governor Butler has [illegible] plan of his campaign. He will make his big fight in New York State because he considers it the weak spot of both Cleveland and Blaine. To his intimate friends the old warrior is very frank. His letter of acceptance will be a ringing document [illegible] the most [illegible] and cannot go astray. On all the issues of the day he will take sides against both of the great parties. The Republican Corruption [illegible] as he terms them, will be unmercifully scathed [illegible] false to all their principles. [illegible] will be shown to be weak [illegible] afraid to take a decided stand on the tariff question [illegible] words to democrats [illegible] He will argue that he working [illegible] democrats have not been fairly treated and that they have nothing to hope for [illegible] anything but promises in future. General Butler's plan is to put in his best work in New York city and state. He will soon go to work and organize Butler clubs. The bulk of his money will be spent in New York. If he does this there can be but one result—the defeat of Cleveland. In Massachusetts Butler is strong, and will poll a very large vote. In Michigan he has also considerable strength and he will work hard in that state to poll a large vote. There is no doubt that Tammany will [illegible] Cleveland's nomination. Still it is said Butler will get the votes. His object in running is to get a new party in the field for 1888.

The Butler ratification meeting will be held in this city on the 30th inst. and his supporters here assert that it will be a monster demonstration in his favor. They call it the Butler cyclone.

WEST VIRGINIA

Washington Special Aug. 11

Republicans who have given the situation an impartial study say that the political situation in West Virginia is now that the chances there is fairly open [illegible] advantage on the side of the republicans. The democratic candidates state and national are [illegible] popular with the rank and file [illegible]

HOW AN ELECTION BY THE HOUSE WOULD RESULT

Washington Special to Chicago Tribune.

A theory that Butler intends to injure Cleveland by attempting to throw the election into the house is based on [illegible] of the situation. A vote given for Butler with that end [illegible] is a vote for Cleveland [illegible] the election is thrown into the house Cleveland will be elected on the first ballot. The following states will in that event vote for Cleveland: Alabama, Arkansas, California, Connecticut, Delaware, Georgia, Indiana, Kentucky, Louisiana, Maryland, Michigan, Mississippi, Missouri, Nevada, New York, North Carolina, Ohio, South Carolina, Tennessee, Texas, West Virginia—23. The following would vote for the republican candidate: Colorado, Illinois, Iowa, Kansas, Maine, Massachusetts, Minnesota, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, Oregon, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, Vermont and Wisconsin—16. Florida is equally divided [illegible] and one [illegible] her vote [illegible] in the decision. It would then devolve upon the senate to elect a vice president from the two highest of the list of those voted for by the electors for that position [illegible] and Hendricks before [illegible] would elect [illegible] Logan.

BLAINE'S [illegible] AS TO THE RESULT

NEW YORK, Aug. 11.—[illegible] the republican headquarters was [illegible] the oldest son of the republican candidate. He was the bearer of several important messages from his father [illegible] Chairman Jones [illegible] conference with Mr Elkins and Mr [illegible] for some time. Young Blaine takes a hopeful view of the campaign [illegible] equally as cheerful [illegible] the result [illegible] strong [illegible] health and spirits. [illegible]

HOW THE NEW YORK TIMES ANSWERS ITSELF

The 16th day of July 1884 [illegible] ago the New York Times published an editorial [illegible] the [illegible] while [illegible] the [illegible]

[illegible] republican [illegible] president [illegible] Blaine [illegible] popular [illegible] The [illegible] and having [illegible] of public life the attainment to him which is strong and extended must be credited to him for all of his own character.

On the above the New York Tribune makes this pertinent comment:

Would it be possible for Mr. Blaine to have awakened the enthusiasm throughout the country of which any political leader might be proud if he was not worthy of the general confidence? The droll thing about our neighbor's present political attitude is the fact that it asserted its support of Mr. Blaine to whom it referred thus handsomely last year but to Mr. Cleveland whom it denounced last year. There is edifying consistency for you. The Times can't go Blaine who it declared had awakened a sentiment of which any political leader might be proud. But it can go Cleveland whom it denounced a year ago as the ally of jobbers, as the manufacturer of humbug pretensions of reform, as the perpetrator of cheap and scurvy tricks, as a low priced statesman.

DEMOCRATIC BOLT AT WHEELING

WHEELING, Aug. 9.—There is considerable excitement here in political circles over the formation of an Irish American Blaine club composed wholly of the Irish in this city who have been in a state of dissatisfaction over the nomination of Cleveland. Edward Larkin, a wealthy and influential Irish merchant [illegible] and began missionary work among [illegible] The result of his effort is the formation of a strong Blaine club, officered exclusively by Irish [illegible] who have always heretofore voted the democratic ticket. At the meeting last night ten [illegible] speeches were made by life long democrats against the election of Cleveland. [illegible] added to the [illegible] of the republicans [illegible] the democratic party considerable uneasiness. The Irish bolt seems to be gaining strength to-day and the uncertainty concerning its extent has [illegible] disturbed political circles. Irish American Blaine clubs have been formed at Parkersburg and [illegible] The [illegible] number [illegible]

BLAINE'S ACKNOWLEDGED TALENTS

The New York Sun reiterates its familiar remark that the republican party ought to go but in the same issue has this to say of Mr. Blaine and his Twenty Years of Congress:

No professional man of letters can fail to appreciate the admirable clearness, precision and vivacity of Mr. Blaine's style. On the whole, Twenty Years of Congress is a book of which any author can think might well be proud, and a less favorable judgment will not be pronounced by any man who knows merit when he sees it and who does not permit his personal predilections to stifle or distort the utterances of honest criticism. Whatever may be the outcome of the author's political expectations he can look back with feelings of unmixed satisfaction on this abiding memorial of talents well applied. Rarely, indeed, has any party been able to present on behalf of its candidate for the presidential office so impressive a voucher of intellectual capacity.

ATTITUDE OF TAMMANY

John Kelly, in an interview at Saratoga August 9, said he had certainly in nowise changed his estimate of Cleveland since the latter's nomination. He feels that a man has been nominated who does not represent true democratic principles, and one who can not be elected. Still, as a good democrat, he does not feel inclined to bolt the nomination. He recognizes Butler to be a man who is going to play a most prominent part in shaping the result of the election, and he feels that he will receive a vote which will astonish both the country and Butler himself for its immensity. He considers that Tammany will give a formal acknowledgment that the regular democratic nominees are Cleveland and Hendricks. Aside from keeping his record clear of not bolting the nomination, Tammany will do nothing for the ticket. That an overwhelming majority of the members will vote for Butler is unquestioned.

THE CAMPAIGN SCANDAL OF THE CHICAGO TIMES

Chicago Inter Ocean, Aug. 11. For some time the democrats have been threatening, if the republicans did not let up on Cleveland's moral leprosy, to retaliate with something awful on Blaine. The threat ended thunderbolt of wrath was hurled Sunday last by the Chicago Times. A series of affidavits was produced going to show that thirty-four years ago Mr. Blaine, then a professor in a military school at Blue Lick Springs, Kentucky, was too intimate with Miss —— (name not given), who disappeared from that region soon after and has never been heard of. For eight years she went in search of Morgan [illegible] is still hunting for that lost, strayed or [illegible] The [illegible] and [illegible] be inspected by any one who has a right to see them. Yesterday a Chicago lawyer of good standing and republican sympathies, but who is not a politician, Mr. W. O. Robinson, called at the Times office with the request to be shown the affidavits. The managing editor refused to show them, and when pressed declared that they were in the hands of our lawyer, refusing to disclose the name of the lawyer. Mr. Robinson was not commissioned by any one to make the call, but went simply to satisfy himself as to the genuineness of the affidavits. The Times might as well come down at once. Long before the campaign closes the exact facts will be known. Trumped-up charges cannot be sustained by fictitious documents without being exposed and resulting. The Morey dodge cannot be played at this stage of the campaign.

A sound mind goes very seldom without a sound digestion, and nothing contributes toward it more than the use of Angostura Bitters, the world-renowned appetizer and invigorator, manufactured only by Dr. J. G. B. Siegert & Sons.

GENERAL NEWS.

The "Sun" Continues Its Talk Against Governor Cleveland.

HADLEY DENIES DAVENPORT'S STATEMENTS

Watterson Says the Charges Against Blaine Are Infamous—A Potter Conference Called—The Day's Record

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The Sun continues its Butler boom and gives details of the political frauds and knaveries of the past republican administrations and declares there is not a republican in the department or in congress who would not prefer to see Cleveland's [illegible] Butler to succeed Arthur, intimating that Cleveland would be quite as bad as any republican. The Sun adds editorially: "There is one candidate for the presidency whose election would tear up these evils, root and branch, and under his hands reform would be real, effective and fearless, and the name of this man is Benjamin F. Butler. With such a candidate as Cleveland defeat is better for the party than success. Defeat with Greeley in 1872 was better for the democracy than success would have been. The party is in better condition to-day than it [illegible] have been if it elected Greeley then. Defeat with Cleveland in 1884 will be better for the democracy than success with him. Moreover to vote for Butler is the only way left us for protesting against the folly and outrage of nominating Cleveland, and such protest is the one effect we are [illegible] democratic voter can now render to his party. If Butler should be elected he would do more to reform the government in a month than Cleveland could do in the whole four years. The nomination was a great mistake, as great almost as was that of Greeley in 1872. We labored against it beforehand; we denounced it as a grave blunder, and our opinion has not been changed by the success of a lucky and unscrupulous politician whose manipulating talent put it through the convention."

HADLEY DENIES DAVENPORT'S STATEMENTS

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—H. H. Hadley, whom John I. Davenport charges with having forged the Morey letter, being interviewed denied emphatically having forged or written the Morey letter and branded as a lie the assertion that he had confessed the forgery. He asserts that he never saw or heard of the letter until it was published in a public print. He admitted to having investigated the question of its authorship at the request of the democratic [illegible] committee, but asserts that nothing came to his knowledge implicating any member of the [illegible] in the affair. At the request of prominent [illegible] he offered a reward of $5,000 in 1881 for the discovery of the author of the letter, and made a memorandum of the affair which he gave to intimate friends to publish in case of his death if thought necessary. He would now rest with his friends [illegible] who [illegible] also momentary [illegible] Barnum has nothing to [illegible] and [illegible] I shall speak for myself and what I [illegible] will be effectually.

DESPERATE FIGHT WITH ESCAPED CONVICTS

LEXINGTON, Ky., Aug. 17.—About 11 o'clock this morning a man living nine miles from here notified the sheriff that George Alsop and Theophilus Graves, escaped convicts who led the recent revolt in the penitentiary at Frankfort, were seen in his neighborhood. Deputy Sheriff Rogers at the head of a posse immediately left for the scene. The fugitives were surprised in a cornfield and they immediately opened fire on the posse, killing George Coswell, a prominent farmer. The posse returned the fire, killing both Alsop and Graves.

A HUSBAND'S SAD RETURN

CHARLESTON, W. Va., Aug. 16.—[Special.]—Last night the dwelling of Charles Summerfield was destroyed by fire. None of the family was about. This morning Summerfield appeared and was greatly astonished to find his wife and children gone and his house burned. Later in the day the body of Mrs. Summerfield was found in the river near by. No trace of the child has been found and it is feared it was destroyed by the mother, who was insane.

KILLED HIS FATHER

CHATTANOOGA, Aug. 16.—Colonel Mondla of Glen Alton on the Cincinnati Southern railroad was killed by his son this evening. The father was drunk and attacked his son. The latter then struck his father with a club and crushed his skull.

SHOCKING INHUMANITY

A Pennsylvania Farmer Chains his Imbecile Brother in a Hut for Thirty Years

PHILADELPHIA, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—A parallel of the [illegible] barbarities are [illegible] The [illegible] who [illegible] his imbecile brother is a farmer in comfortable circumstances. Thirty years ago the brother [illegible] to the family, whose names are suppressed. The survivor built a little shanty about 50 feet away from the farm house and in there he kept his brother [illegible] like a wild beast for [illegible] all these years. When the authorities [illegible] proceeded to the farm, it found the insane man lying in [illegible] and dirt of the hut, stark naked and covered with dirt. He had a dirty gray [illegible] beard [illegible] and was yelling and [illegible] A piece of [illegible] being a [illegible] pan filled with [illegible] refuse of the family table, on which the prisoner was expected to make his Sunday meal.

SHOCKING SURROUNDINGS

On seeing the visitors he crouched in terror and began to wail and cry. The hut was dark and dreary, a little ray of light piercing the gloomy dungeon from a small window in the roof and [illegible] air entered through the chinks in the weather boards. Nothing but filth was on the floor. In the center of the floor was a post to which the prisoner was fastened by a heavy chain only twenty inches in length fastened to the prisoner's left leg above the ankle by a padlock. The chain being short did not permit the poor fellow to go far away from the post. The floor had been worn through in a circle around the post, where he had walked and dragged the chain after him. The ankle upon which the chain was fastened had shrunk and shriveled away.

He was removed to the Warren hospital and is now being kindly cared for by physicians. They say he gives them no annoyance, but will never have his reason restored. Had he been placed under the care of a physician at first he would doubtless have recovered his senses.

A Wealthy Mining Man Murdered

OGDEN, Aug. 1[illegible].—A cold blooded murder was committed last night between Ketchum and Hailey, Idaho. J. W. Coffran arrived this morning by the steamer and left this afternoon for Napa, where Mrs. Coffran is spending the summer. Mrs. Coffran is somewhat improved, but is far from well and her final recovery is still a matter of doubt.

Removed from Office.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 17.—[Special.]—On Friday last Governor Stoneman removed ex-Governor John [illegible], editor of the Alta, from his position of registrar and put General Walsh in his place. The change, which was a great surprise, is in part accounted for by the division in the councils of the democrats in this state, but one motive doubtless was to conciliate the Irish vote of this city. Walsh is prominent as an Irish politician, and so many of his fellow countrymen are looking toward Blaine that the governor probably thought a little pap would be well bestowed at this time. The removal of Johnson widens the breach between the factions of the democratic party. It puts the governor in line with City Boss Buckley.

GOSSIPY NOTES

It has been discovered that the Prince of Wales' excellent speech at the emancipation jubilee is a literal plagiarism from an article in the July issue of Leisure Hours. The appropriation included the adjective "ruthless," which was applied to the civil war in America and for the use of which the speaker was taken up at the time by the spectator.

THE IRISH PARTY

The close of the session leaves the Parnellites stronger by four members than they were at the beginning. If they are not in the possession of many substantial triumphs and conquest they at least have placed themselves on vantage ground that promises much in the near future. The collapse of the Cornwall Bolton regime in Dublin is complete and the government, under stress of this, has become more complaisant toward Ireland, more disposed to it likely than ever since the Kilmainham treaty was terribly overturned by the Phoenix park tragedy. Other recent revelations following closely upon other scandals have had a vital effect on English sentiment and there can be no doubt that the present temper of the ministry is to make examples of any of its creatures about the castle in Dublin and no to renew the [illegible]

THE RELATIONS BETWEEN GERMANY AND ENGLAND

The growing coldness between Germany and England is attracting much attention and is beginning to be [illegible] upon as serious. The general opinion is that Bismarck is sorely irritated at Gladstone's contemptuous and [illegible] attitude towards the scheme of German colonization in Western Africa, in which it is notorious that Bismarck is greatly interested. It is to be hoped, however, that Bismarck will refrain from making any such open manifestations of ill will to the present English government as will result in the alienation of that large and powerful body of Englishmen who sincerely desire to maintain cordial relations with Germany. Much depends upon the coming [illegible] tory election. It is certain that if the tories come into the possession of the government, England will speedily be made a member of the Austro-German alliance. In the meantime here is great curiosity as to the importance of the conference at Varzin between Bismarck and Kalnoky. It is freely asserted that the German chancellor is so [illegible] with the failure of the Egyptian conference and with the [illegible] policy generally that he is planning a [illegible] Austria and Germany to England demanding a prompt settlement of the Alexandria [illegible] and the settlement of the proper sanitary regulations in Egyptian cities.

THE CHOLERA EPIDEMIC

There are now forty-two places and thirteen departments in France from which deaths from cholera have been reported, and doubtless half as many towns and villages in which there have been deaths of which no reports have reached the world outside. Incidents of the plague in Alpine villages are often heartrending. The better part of the priests are doing their duty nobly, but a few ignorant bigots among them have made themselves responsible for much mischief by seizing the opportunity to preach the doctrine that the plague is the result of the spread of radicalism. The result has been a natural one, people accept the visitation as a thing useless to combat. The cholera area now stretches from Toulouse in the southwest to Auxerre in the north and to a gap in the southeast, thus making a triangle whose sides are respectively 235, 345 and 318 miles long. Auxerre is only about 100 miles from Paris.

Cholera seems to have assumed a new phase within the past fortnight. It shows a tendency at present to spread rapidly, to make sharper attacks than in the larger towns, to run its course in shorter time, and to leave the town as quickly as it came. We anticipate a general spread of the disease if the hot weather and brief storms should continue.

HANLAN'S DEFEAT

The defeat of Hanlan by Beach in to-day's race in Australia caused general surprise in London. Hanlan was heavily backed here, although Beach was known to be better than Laycock, and was expected to be a formidable opponent whenever they should be pitted against each other for big money. Hanlan's chief backer in London was enthusiastic yesterday over his prospects of success, and laid £500 to £100 on Hanlan to all takers. Everyone in London believes Hanlan did his best.

LORNE AND LOUISE

The continued separation of Lord Lorne and Princess Louise is again attracting comment. The princess left England yesterday to spend the autumn in Germany. Lorne is yachting with his father and mother in the Hebrides. It is reported that he will succeed his brother Lord Colin Campbell at the next election to the commons in Argyleshire.

WAR POSSIBLE

The ugly attitude of the German papers toward England has been intensified this week, the result being an interesting spirit here. THE CHOLERA EPIDEMIC

PARIS, Aug. 17.—Five deaths from cholera occurred at Arles in the twenty-four hours ending 8 o'clock this evening. At Montfort there are two new cases and one death. At Toulon during the twenty-four hours ending 6 P. M. there were nine deaths. The sanitary condition of Toulon is less satisfactory owing to the relaxation of precautions by the inhabitants and the revival of the epidemic.

SHOT TO DEATH IN SPAIN

Sad Execution of Two Army Officers and Hard Behavior of the King

From a letter from Gerona, the place at which the political military execution occurred on June 9, and from the Spanish correspondence published by European papers the following particulars are condensed relative to the bloody tragedy performed by order of King Alfonso XII. Many officers of the northern army implicated in the latest revolutionary movement had been sentenced to military degradation and penal servitude. Two only, Commandant Ramon Ferrandiz de la Plaza and Lieut. Manuel Velles, suffered the death penalty. The War Council had [illegible] sentenced them to hard labor, but an appeal [illegible] a minister was introduced by [illegible] and the court martial was assembled and a new sentence of death passed on the two officers. The order for the execution reached Gerona on the 6th of June. Immediately all the town went [illegible] and [illegible] as a token of sympathy on the part of the population. The [illegible] [illegible] placards reading thus:

Closed as a sign of mourning!
Mercy for the condemned officer.

Delegations from the [illegible] the workmen's and storekeepers' associations, and from all classes of society went to the telegraph office and forwarded messages to the king begging him to exercise his right of pardon. The Junta de Damas, a high toned and charitable association of ladies, joined in these efforts and sent a dispatch to Mrs. Florentine Sabn, an actress who is considered as wielding some influence upon the heart of Alfonso XII. At Gerona the eight children of the two sentenced officers, dressed in deep mourning, were taken along the streets to the residence of the governor followed by a distressed multitude and all kinds of supplications were resorted to, and at last even conservative deputies pleaded for the officers and did not hesitate to drape the doors of their residences. All this was of no avail. The king declined to grant the pardon.

The two condemned men partook of a light supper and went to sleep. At 4 in the morning they were awakened, heard the mass and took the communion. They walked from the jail to the place of execution along a [illegible] country road surrounded by soldiers, seeing at each step [illegible] that road their coffins, carried on a wagon at the end of the lengthy cortege. As soon as they entered the hollow square formed by the troops the general presiding at the execution raised his sword and said: "Should a dead silence. By order of the king shall be punished with death whoever shall raise his voice for mercy!"

The officers then had their sentences read to them, their military insignia were torn from their uniforms and they were seated on chairs, their eyes having been previously bandaged despite their protests. The firing platoon was hardly distant twelve feet, and Commander Ferrandiz was killed outright. Captain V[illegible] had to be killed with a second volley. Such was the epilogue of the pronunciamento of the garrison of Santa Colombo, April 2 last.

Eastern Market for Horses.

Boston Commercial Bulletin

A prominent auctioneer states that the sales this year have been fully 20 per cent. larger than last year, despite the fact that general business has been so quiet. The demand for horses is increasing every year, and as the supply does not seem to increase in the same proportion, prices are running higher, and this year range from 15 to 25 per cent. higher than last year. The main demand is for good roading horses, those having good size, style and action. A reasonable degree of speed is looked for, horses being expected to road ten miles an hour easily. Great speed is not a customary desideratum, but is rarely objected to.

How to Prolong Life.

Most of our readers are probably aware that Methuselem was 969 years old at the time of his death. No one has ever since attained to so great an age because the way to accomplish it has hitherto remained a secret. We have discovered this valuable recipe and herewith publish it for the benefit of mankind at large. Be it be it known that Methuselem did not marry until he was 186 years old. Let this course be generally adopted and we guarantee that every one who acts upon our advice will attain exactly the same age as the venerable patriarch in question.

A Mexican beverage called pulque has been introduced in the southwest. A Span of Pink Horses.

Nashville, Tenn., American.

A pair of pink horses, attached to a hack, was seen standing in front of the Maxwell house the most of the day, yesterday, and caused considerable inquiry among the pedestrians as to how they came to be so highly colored. The hackman who drove them explained to about 100 people, but was asked the question so many times that he came over to the American office and got a sheet of paper on which he wrote the following, which he pasted on the side of his coach:

"Them hosses got pinked by bein' left in the rains with red fly nets on. It ain't no use askin' more kestions about it."

BAND OF HOPE.

There was a beautiful sight at the W. C. T. U. hall yesterday afternoon, in the form of a bright company of children—over fifty—a splendid company for vacation when so many of our people are off at the coast, or elsewhere for a good time, while a few are holding the fort. The meeting was one of unusual interest. Mrs. Craw, just returned from California, had a nice fresh story with which to regale the children. Mrs. Blain of Albany, and president of the band of hope of that city, gave a talk of much practical value, both to teachers and children.

SCANDALS AND CALUMNIES

Two or three of the weekly organs of Oregon democracy have complained that THE OREGONIAN is lending its columns to the circulation of "calumnies" against Mr Cleveland. The reference, of course, is to publication of the account of Mr. Cleveland's immoral conduct in private life and of what has been said by the press about it. Let our critics be reminded that the statements are not "calumnies" but ascertained and admitted facts The personal and private character of a man is a proper thing to take into consideration when he offers himself for public place. The Cleveland scandal is not an edifying topic of discussion, but it cannot be avoided. The apologists of Mr Cleveland have been publishing different versions of the filthy affair and each version has presented him in a different but equally odious and repulsive light. His opponents have charged nothing worse than his friends have admitted in their efforts to shield him Indeed most of the arguments by which his friends have attempted to justify him have been as nauseous and immoral as his own conduct Of this character are the references to Washington and others as likewise lewd and immoral with apologetic remarks on the alleged liability of great men to go wrong, the doctrine that "so long as the relations of individuals are mutually satisfactory they are no one's business but their own," and the endeavor to protect the defendant against the charge of being a cruel and calculating seducer of female virtue by describing him as living with other men in promiscuous intercourse with a drunken and unchaste woman, the paternity of whose child he assumed in order to shield a friend from domestic trouble Here are statements which cannot but be regarded with some interest particularly when associated with the championship of morality and reform. Let it be borne in mind that these are the statements, versions and arguments of the democratic press, put forth in behalf of Mr Cleveland They are not, then, the calumnies of enemies, they are the excuses and apologies of friends In its news columns this paper has printed both what has been charged against Mr Cleveland and what has been said in his defense. It was bound as a newspaper to do this. Of its comments on the matter it says nothing here, leaving the public to judge them

"But what are you going to say of the Blaine scandal?" This question comes from an anxious democratic brother, who thinks he could relish something of this kind better than the reading he has had about Cleveland during the last week or two We have just this to say, namely, that neither Mr. Blaine nor any friend of his has admitted the truth of what has been charged and attempted to justify by saying that the relations of individuals with each other are nobody's business but their own, they have not answered that Washington and Jefferson and Franklin were loose in their morals and conduct and that the like is to be expected in all public men Of one of the charges against Mr Blaine nothing whatever need be said, because no name is given except his own The story is anonymous, no person is named as an authority or witness, the name of the woman who is said to have been wronged is withheld, and the story bears on its face the evidence of being a weak fabrication. Its object, of course, was merely retaliatory Were it true names would be given and witnesses appealed to, as in the Buffalo case, for we may be sure that vigilant opponents would not let the matter sleep. They would be anxious enough to get a story that would offset that told and confessed against their own candidate. But this invention is too weak to hang a story on It carries its own refutation But another story has been told This one was specific, Mr Blaine instantly denounced it as an utter and an abominable lie, and ordered at once an action for libel against the paper that published it. It is not probable that, in the desire to retaliate for the Cleveland scandal, efforts in this direction against Blaine will be pursued further.

THE OREGONIAN, as a newspaper, could not possibly close its columns to matters which the whole country was talking about And when those extraordinary apologies for Mr Cleveland were put forth by his supporters—particularly by those who have gone over to his side on the plea that the main issue of the present canvass is "moral," not "political"—it could not refrain from examining doctrines so remarkably at variance with every principle of decency and of public and private morality.

THE NEW ORLEANS EXPOSITION.

Great preparations are making at New Orleans for the world's exposition which will open next winter This world's fair was started as a cotton centennial, but its plan has been extended so as to make an exhibit as far as possible of all industries. New Orleans is making great exertions in her preparations for the event, and is receiving material aid from nearly all the southern states, the design being to have an exposition that will do honor to the whole country, and particularly to the south Rapid progress is making in the erection of the buildings Congress last session voted $300,000 to make a display of the government exhibits. For this purpose a building 885 feet long by 565 feet wide is being erected The United States geological survey will furnish a fine exhibit of minerals, ores and rocks from all the states and territories It has a collection of interesting fossil animals and fossils exhibiting the characteristics of animals and plants now extinct It has models of extinct volcanoes, the grand canyon of the Colorado, Yosemite valley and the national park. It has plans of the Comstock and other great mines of the country The patent office, Indian bureau, general land office, bureau of education, deaf mute asylum pension office, geological survey, bureau of ethnology, Smithsonian institution, national museum and the United States fish commission will contribute to the exhibition. A great horticultural hall is being erected, which will remain the permanent property of New Orleans after the exhibition closes next May. Choice plants and trees are now being brought from foreign countries to be placed in the hall, and the exhibition of forestry and arboriculture will be the finest ever seen in America. There will be a great sugar exhibit in which Louisiana will take special pride, a dairy exhibit in which premiums amounting to $02,000 are offered, an exhibit of cereals which it is hoped will be the finest ever seen in the country, an art gallery, zoological garden, and an exhibit of the processes and products of every possible kind of industrial activity. Whether or not steps have been taken to have Oregon represented at the exposition in any way we do not know, but certainly it ought not to be neglected

It is now suggested that it would be a wise thing on Cleveland's part to confine his letter of acceptance to the barest form of words, and not attempt to discuss any of the questions involved in the contest In this way he would both disappoint Butler and escape his vengeance Butler has given notice that he is lying in wait for Cleveland, and his merciless dissection of Cleveland's epistle, if the latter writes one, will be a striking feature of the lively and picturesque contest which Butler will introduce Cleveland would do well to accept with thanks and say nothing more

At the eastern seaside resorts the young ladies have adopted the style of wearing wisps of hay on their hats. Is this to be the fashion at Clatsop and Ilwaco, too? It will doubtless be very attractive to the dudes.

While Hendricks and other democratic bosses declare that Tammany will support the "regular ticket," the course of the New York Star, the organ of Tammany, very strongly indicates the contrary.

RELIGIOUS REACTION

While "no answer" to Colonel Ingersoll's attacks upon Christianity is needed it is only fair to say that a large share of his most brilliant and captivating opposition is aimed at errors which no longer exist or are gradually passing away For the most part he is fighting dead lions The Boston Herald very justly says that he plants the stuffed and grinning fetich of his boyhood days upon the stage before his auditors and for a consideration per head batters at this scarecrow as though it were a veritable monster Of the later processes of religious thought and religious development, the colonel is apparently as ignorant as though there had been no change since the days when he attended Sunday school As a matter of fact, the world has moved and moved at a decidedly rapid pace although Colonel Ingersoll has not kept track of the movement

Within the past century there has been a wide spread reaction against the whole dogmatic apprehension of Christianity This reaction has been doubtless helped to a considerable degree by the change of political sentiment which has taken place during the same period Mr Lecky, in his history of Rationalism expresses the opinion that "if in the sphere of religion, the rationalistic doctrine of personal merit and demerit should ever completely supercede the theological doctrine of hereditary merit and demerit the change will mainly be effected by the triumph of democratic principles in the sphere of politics" An illustration of this theory may be drawn from the fact that the great religious revolt in this country from the exclusiveness of Calvinism was coincident with the great democratic revolt from the conservative politics of the founders of the republic This religious reaction assumed various forms and was attended by very different results Its most direct and obvious effect as the late Professor Diman has said, was seen in the rise of new religious sects but its influence was destined to be powerfully felt in modifying some already existing One of its earliest fruits was the formation near the close of the last century of the "United Brethren in Christ" made up of seceders from the German Reformed and Lutheran bodies The numerous sect of "Christians," which sprang up simultaneously in three different localities near the beginning of the present century was an illustration of the same movement So was the remarkable declaration of Alexander Campbell in 1807 But by far the most important phase of this reaction is shown in the enormous growth of Methodism And as this year is the centennial anniversary of the distinct ecclesiastical organization of Methodism in this country, a brief review of its wonderful growth will furnish a powerful illustration of the modern religious movement which Colonel Ingersoll ignores

Methodism was introduced into America in 1766, but it did not receive a distinct ecclesiastical organization until 1784 when it ceased to be dependent on the colonial English church for the sacraments, and became a consolidated and distinct church But even then, as the famous Dr. Stiles said in his election sermon before the legislature of Connecticut in 1783, they were "very inconsiderable" in numbers At their conference at Baltimore the following year when the plan appointed by Wesley was adopted they collected but a few preachers, and it was reckoned that in the whole country they could muster but twenty more They were not only few in numbers but poor and unknown They worshiped in barns in back streets and in the open air But now they number 4 000,000 members and have a church property of one hundred millions During the year 1875 their churches increased at the rate of two for each secular day throughout the year They are now the most numerous religious organization in the land and their zeal and confidence are fully proportioned to their strength

The rise of this great and influential body Professor Diman says "must be viewed as the most signal religious fact which the present century presents" And while its growth may be attributed in part to its organization, its vital power "must be sought not in its form but in its spirit" Its rapid growth cannot be accounted for except upon the hypothesis that it met a great popular want, and it is equally necessary to recognize the fact that this adaptation lay in the sharp contrast which it presented to the prevailing faith. It represents a profound popular reaction which was not brought about as the Boston Herald says, so much by the advance of science, for it began before the work of such men as Huxley, Darwin Tyndall and Spencer. It was a distinctively religious, not a scientific reaction, Calvinism, throughout all its camps, "lay intrenched in the outworks of the understanding" But Methodism appealed from "the theology of the intellect" to "the theology of the feelings, and to souls sated with religious formulas, but not yet wholly embittered against the truth, Methodism with its direct intuitions, "came like springs of water in a dry and thirsty land" Wesley and his American disciples insisted always and everywhere that religious faith is not a logical conviction, but an immediate inspiration, and thus they erected "a citadel of human faith" which "no storming party, no matter how daring its leader, will ever be able to carry" They made their appeal at once to man's spiritual nature, laying no stress on nice theological distinctions Some of its early leaders lived, like Loyola in a world of ecstatic visions The "inner light," which with the Quakers had sunk into an inoffensive quietism, became with them the impulse to an unexampled effort It is estimated that Asbury during the forty-five years of his untiring ministry rode a distance that would have taken him twelve times around the world When we read the story which one of the early missionaries of Methodism tells of himself but a story which hundreds doubtless might have repeated, we cannot help contrasting it with the diary of Colonel Ingersoll, who travels in palace cars and is paid a thousand dollars a night to lecture on the ghosts that have been long since laid "I traversed," he said, "the mountains and valleys frequently on foot, with my knapsack on my back, guided by Indian paths in the wilderness where it was not expedient to take a horse, and I had often to wade through morasses half leg deep in mud and water, frequently satisfying my hunger with a piece of bread and pork from my knapsack quenching my thirst from a brook, and resting my weary limbs on the leaves of trees" The early triumphs of Methodism were not achieved by learning nor culture but by appeals to the "soft whisper of God in man" which the most eloquent skeptic cannot stifle or suppress And no one can review the remarkable growth of this church for a hundred years without recognizing the truth of the striking words carved on Philip Embury's tomb that it has done much "to beautify the earth with salvation"

Most of the "ghosts" so vigorously assailed by Colonel Ingersoll consist of errors incident to the childhood of the race or of superstitions and dogmas which are fostered by an ignorant populace dominated over by a priesthood ignorant of everything almost except the dry formalism into which a spiritual worship had been allowed to degenerate And the rise and progress of Methodism with its "lowly preaching" shows the escape from these errors has been effected not so much by the advancement of learning as by a return to the human heart as the original source of truth and by a recognition also by the intellect of the value of humility in the apprehension of truth—that the intellect is nearer the truth when it stoops than when it soars

If any one supposes that Harper's Weekly, called by its proprietors "a journal of civilization," has always been on the side of the country and an unerring guide in patriotism and love of country, a study of its treatment of Mr. Lincoln would very quickly dispel that illusion. Its cartoons on Lincoln were among the most cruel and outrageous that ever disgraced its pages. He was represented as a buffoon, a coward and a drunken loafer, who could joke over the death of a soldier on the field of battle These cartoons are now being reproduced by many of the newspapers of the country, and their re-appearance at this time will prove a mighty influence to show the false pretenses of that journal and will illustrate the character of the "civilization" it advocates

FAMOUS PENSIONERS.

Prominent Men who have Figured on the Treasury Rolls

Recent Washington Letter

It will be news to many that Abraham Lincoln Frank Pierce General Grant William T Sherman and Jeff Davis have received anything in the way of pensions but their papers are all there filed away in the division allotted to the Mexican war They are done up in brown paper covers and filed away with about a hundred thousand others lining the walls of an immense office hall They are curious papers too and in view of the history of the times since their application they are read with interest [illegible] Grant's [illegible] and warrant of 160 acres given him in 1851 for his services as second lieutenant and regimental quartermaster in the Mexican war His letter making the application is characteristic of the man It is dated at Detroit Mich November 6 1850 is abominably written in Grant's own hand and put in the fewest words possible being signed U S Grant First Lieutenant and R Q M Fourth Infantry

Captain William T Sherman's claim comes from St Louis dated about the same time It asks for two quarter sections of land one for his Florida services and the other for his services in Mexico The claim is presented by Tom Ewing Jr his brother in law Abe Lincoln's claim was presented in 1855 for his services in the Black Hawk war which it cites he entered for an indefinite period and served for forty days It is Lincoln's handwriting and was granted in 1855

At the same time Robert E Lee then employed at the United States Military Academy at West Point, sent papers here for which he received 160 acres of land for his services as colonel in the Mexican war

Here too are the papers of General Scott asking for bounty land for his services in the war of 1812 They are signed by Scott, and were granted to him while he was general of the army here Shortly after this come the papers by which Jeff Davis and Frank Pierce were allowed their land claims for services in the Mexican war L. Waldo was the commissioner of pensions at this time while Jeff Davis was secretary of state and Frank Pierce president Pierce's application is made out in Waldo's handwriting as is also that of Jeff Davis and they both abound in fulsome praise of these two officers Both are indorsed by Waldo as special cases and a note inclosed with each that they be left with him to be sent to the pensioners and not to be mailed in the ordinary way

There are now on the pension roll eighty two widows of revolutionary soldiers and forty eight of these come from the southern states Nine are from Tennessee eight from Georgia eleven from Virginia, four from West Virginia and twelve from North Carolina There is only one revolutionary widow from Mississippi one in Massachusetts three in South Carolina, four in Ohio and New York five in Maine and New Hampshire seven in Vermont and eight in Pennsylvania

Among the pensioners are the wives of three presidents—Mrs Polk who is living in Tennessee Mrs John Tyler who is living at Richmond Va, and Mrs James A Garfield Each of these receive $5000 a year, according to a special act of congress. Mrs Abraham Lincoln got from 1870 to 1882 a pension of $4000 In 1882 it was increased to $5000 which continued until her death The daughter of another President Zachary Taylor also receives a pension at this time It amounts to $50 a month and is given for the services of General Taylor in the Mexican war

The widows of General Isaac Stevens E D Baker Whipple Sumner Robert Anderson (the hero of Fort Sumter) James B McPherson A B Dyer George H Custer (the Indian fighter) R G Ramsey Buford Blenker Daniel McCook John A Rawlins Frank P Blair, George H Thomas, Surgeon General Woods and Rear Admiral John Rogers receive from $30 to $50 a month The widow of Admiral Farragut gets $2000 a year by special act and General Phil Kearney's widow did get $30 a month but she has since married and this sum now goes to her children A curious claim now pending before the office of the war of 1812 is one presented by the widow of Anthony Castle, alias Anthony Castle It asks for an increase of pension and cites that Anthony Castle who died in 1870 at Ann Arbor Mich, joined the British forces in Canada that he deserted in 1814 crossed on the ice to the American side of the river and entered the United States service After serving here six months he was retaken by the British at a point six miles below Niagara Falls court martialed and sentenced to death His sentence was however commuted to 800 lashes from the result of which he never recovered and for which a pension was granted him This pension his widow asks to have increased

WHAT SOME PAPERS SAY

St Louis Globe Democrat (Rep) The defense of Cleveland might do very well for extremely hot weather but it is entirely too thin for the thermometer at 70

Philadelphia Press (Rep) Butler's bottle is not large but now that Editor Dana has pulled the cork it is likely to hold the democratic majority in three or four states

Providence Journal (Rep) Frederick Douglass and John G Whittier have announced their earnest support of Blaine and Logan and we suppose must be reckoned as below the standard of political purity

Milwaukee Sentinel (Rep) It is suggested that Cleveland would have saved some money and trouble if he had pondered on the senior Weller's advice respecting that interesting class known as widders

Chicago Tribune Mr Dana's opposition to Cleveland derives most significance from the fact that it was not determined on until after due deliberation and when it became apparent that Cleveland's election was impossible Mr Dana did not begin to sneer at Hancock in 1880 until he realized the hopelessness of his candidacy

New York Sun (dem) The independent democrats have one advantage as a party over the independent republicans They are going to stand up to be counted while no body will ever be able to tell where the Cleveland democrats left off and the independent republicans began In the politics of the future only the Butler democrats will be a positive known quantity

Buffalo Commercial Advertiser (rep) We remind the Post that throwing mud at Dr Ball will not whitewash Mr Cleveland And we insist that it take notice that Dr Ball did not ferret out this scandal did not write it up nor circulate it Why does it attack him alone? Several other reputable clergymen of this city must share with Dr Ball whatever responsibility justly belongs to him in this matter

"The Derangement of Epitaphs"

New York Evening Mail

The New York Times prints Mr Schurz's speech and praises it and the author very highly There is plenty of time however during the present campaign, for the Times to come back to the republican party after its lost readers and patrons In that case it might find in its issue of April 13 1872 this nice derangement of epitaphs about Mr Schurz viz

The democratic papers of Indiana announce that Senator Schurz will begin to stump that state as soon as Congress adjourns Senator Schurz has stumped Indiana once before—twelve years ago during the memorable Lincoln and Douglas campaign At that time he spoke from the same platform with such honored and tried champions of freedom as Henry S Lane Schuyler Colfax etc Now he will figure side by side with Daniel W Voorhees who then called him a "foul-mouthed Dutch viper" with Thomas A Hendricks who in every speech he made in that campaign alluded to Schurz as the "Lying Dutchman" with David Turpie who asserted that "the portrait of Car Schurz could be found in every rogues gallery in Europe," etc

That Nasty and False Kentucky Story

St Paul Pioneer Press

The Chicago Times, which gloats on that sort of garbage publishes two columns of imaginative gossip about an alleged escapade of Blaine's youth when he was teaching school in Kentucky, resulting in the betrayal and ruin of a young girl This nasty story, which is fabricated with infinite zest and pains from shreds and patches of malicious tattle as an offset to the Cleveland scandal is pronounced by Henry Watterson who sent his own reporters to investigate it to be wholly false and groundless There seems to be no use trying to avoid the printing of such vile stuff since the public in the end will always insist on knowing what is the nature of the scandal, however fanciful it may be which every respectable newspaper would gladly suppress but in giving the substance of it in this case, if it can be said to have any substance it is pleasant to be able with the same stroke to give the antidote on such conclusive democratic authority as that of the distinguished editor of the Courier Journal

NOTICE TO THE PUBLIC.

Corner Fourth and A Streets

Portland Or Aug 8th 1884

I hereby acknowledge that A S Moore of Vancouver Mills Vancouver W T sold me ten barrels flour which he sent to me in "Capital" mills and Salem mills sacks Some of it I have sold which has been returned to me

Signed M WERTHEIMER.

Referring to the above letter and other similar cases which have come to our knowledge showing that A S Moore of Vancouver W T has been putting his flour into our sacks and so selling the flour with malicious intent and to our injury we hereby warn the public and the trade generally to see that they get our respective brands of flour from the proper agents. Steps have been taken to prosecute all such infringements to the full extent of the law

AN ANSWER.

ON THE REQUEST OF A. S. MOORE IN ORder to reply to a certain notice published in the Oregonian I will respectfully say to the public that I did not buy the said ten barrels of flour of Mr Moore as Capital Mill flour but as Vancouver Mill flour in second handed sacks nor have I sold it as Capital Mill flour Mr Moore told me at the time I bought the flour of him that it was Vancouver City Mill flour I do not consider that Mr Moore in anywise intended to infringe upon the rights of the Capital Mill Co or to deceive me or the public M. WERTHEIMER. Portland Or August 11 1884.

In answer to the card published in the Oregonian by the agents of the Salem Flouring Mills Co and the City of Salem Co I have only to say that as a matter of economy I have for years bought and used second hand flour sacks of all brands but in selling flour placed in such sacks I have always notified purchasers that the flour was Vancouver City Mills flour and in [illegible]

CITY.

A SWISS CONSUL.—A meeting of Swiss [illegible] nearly 100 were in attendance was [illegible] German Benevolent Society's hall in [illegible] 2 o'clock yesterday afternoon to [illegible] the advisability of sending a petition to the [illegible] asking for the appointment of a [illegible] for Oregon, Washington and Idaho [illegible] was organized by calling Henry Saxer [illegible] and appointing C. Bircher secretary. It [illegible] all present that the appointment [illegible] would be of great service as there [illegible] settlements of Swiss in Oregon and [illegible] territories and many more are com[illegible] these people have business to transact [illegible] home and require help and ad[illegible] one in whom they can [illegible] and the matter of securing a con[illegible] has been under consideration for [illegible] After considerable discussion it was [illegible] meeting that a petition should be [illegible] signed by as many Switzers as can be [illegible] presented by a committee to Senator [illegible] request that he consult with the con[illegible] at Washington and take such steps as [illegible] proper attention of the Swiss gov[illegible] secure the desired object. The question [illegible] who would be a proper person to [illegible] the name of G. Shindler was [illegible] received the unanimous endorsement [illegible] A committee consisting of Messrs [illegible] and Gabring was appointed to cir[illegible] for signatures and the meeting [illegible] September 14th.

[illegible] THE BRIDE.—There was great [illegible] the heart of Chinatown yesterday [illegible] wedding in high life was on the tapis [illegible] 400 or 500 Chinamen surrounded the [illegible] on Morrison street near Second [illegible] to catch a glimpse of the lady as she [illegible] the happy man. When the girl started [illegible] stairs in charge of an old woman [illegible] made a rush for the doorway [illegible] appeared upon the sidewalk with her [illegible] behind a fan the excitement be[illegible] that the services of a policeman [illegible] to clear a way to the carriage. Every [illegible] crowd was [illegible] with a gen[illegible] the schemes of [illegible] the rare [illegible] who was about to launch upon [illegible] sea of matrimony. The bride's dress [illegible] long train [illegible] with rare oil [illegible] pantaloons were of six full widths [illegible] Her hair was dressed a la Hung [illegible] no bangs of any description. Her [illegible] were half hidden in a bewitch[illegible] slippers, with the heels knocked off [illegible] Timidness was carefully placed in a [illegible] and driven to the apartments of the [illegible] on Second street who was wonderfu[illegible] his relatives and friends [illegible] whether she would be [illegible] as dutiful [illegible] on Morrison street were posted [illegible] an [illegible] a shower of [illegible]

[illegible] ROAD.—It was expected to have the [illegible] open for traffic this week but in [illegible] rolling stock and inclines [illegible] the opening has been postponed until [illegible] which date it is confidently ex[illegible] road will commence to be operated [illegible] at last been made between the [illegible] the Puget Sound Shore and the Or[illegible] companies whereby the link con[illegible] with Tacoma will be put in operation [illegible] Whether there will be through [illegible] the east and Seattle is not known [illegible] of course run through [illegible] and no time card can be [illegible] will work greater inconvenience [illegible] from the Sound than the pres[illegible] Seattle Post Intelligencer says: As[illegible] Manager Buckley will be transferred [illegible] to Portland. The head office of the [illegible] Puget sound will remain in Tacoma [illegible] Port Townsend, British Columbia [illegible] will continue there to be made [illegible] be retained there and such bus[illegible] belongs to the place but there will [illegible] loosening of the pressure put upon [illegible] the benefit of Tacoma notably to the [illegible]

[illegible] ADAMS.—A party of young men who [illegible] days ago for Mount Adams returned [illegible] It consisted of Joseph Schade of East [illegible] Sullivan, H. Hildebrand, Fred [illegible] Knapp, Carl Pfluger and E. Hause [illegible] they camped on Trout creek about [illegible] the ice caves to which they made [illegible] during their stay. The temperature at [illegible] from about 35 degrees during the [illegible] during the day rendering bathing [illegible] both safe and enjoyable. There [illegible] abundance of fine trout in [illegible] the reports of the number taken out [illegible] render the stories of anglers in the [illegible] by comparison. The party [illegible] during their stay between [illegible] hundred of which they brought [illegible] The largest one caught by them [illegible] length 1 and 18 inches being an [illegible] Mr. Hildebrand was the artist of the [illegible] photographic views on Salmon river [illegible] the ice cave and of many other points [illegible] party report a very enjoyable trip [illegible] returning home.

[illegible] CARBONS.—In these days when [illegible] being treated to numerous experi[illegible] matter of electric lighting it may be [illegible] to know the [illegible] lighthouse de[illegible] England is now engaged in making ex[illegible] to determine the relative advantages of [illegible] electricity for lighthouse illumination [illegible] in the electric lamps instead of [illegible] pencil as is in use here are com[illegible] small carbons which is found [illegible] better light. In a large carbon there [illegible] crater or burn out in a hollow and [illegible] carbon causes the light to flicker [illegible] a bundle of small carbons a defect in [illegible] difference and it is scarcely proba[illegible] would occur at the same point in [illegible] The electric light companies here [illegible] some of these new fangled car[illegible] they are any improvement over the [illegible]

[illegible] SINGING.—Captain O. A. Bell of [illegible] house fame and O. G. Leslie, a boon [illegible] were arrested by the police about nine [illegible] evening for disorderly conduct. They [illegible] up and down the principal streets, [illegible] bar room songs and shouting all [illegible] at people who were astonished [illegible] Upon being brought to the city [illegible] asked for permission to go out and get [illegible] appearance in court to-day. A police[illegible] accordingly sent with each one. Bell ob[illegible] and deposited it with the captain, [illegible] pretext of speaking to a friend [illegible] moment, eluded the officer who accom[illegible] made good his escape.

[illegible] STEAMERS.—The employes [illegible] at work at the mouth of the Wil[illegible] engaged in driving piles along the [illegible] island to extend the revetment up [illegible] Willamette slough. Much annoy[illegible] and the work retarded by the pile[illegible] driven against the bank by the swell [illegible] steamers. It is requested by parties in [illegible] work that the captains of steamers will [illegible] where the pile-driver is employed [illegible] so as to prevent delay in the pro[illegible] work. All river men are interested [illegible] they will most likely comply [illegible] this reasonable request which can [illegible] little trouble.

[illegible] RETURN.—Parties returning from [illegible] a large number of guests at the [illegible] that it is conducted in a manner tha[illegible] satisfaction to all. Some inquiries [illegible] as to how to [illegible] hotel will be kept [illegible] The beach is in the finest possible [illegible] and driving perfectly. Ilwaco and [illegible]

[illegible] DISCOVERED.—Policeman Orel [illegible] at headquarters last night having [illegible] Chinaman afflicted with the worst case [illegible] known as yet in this city. The leper [illegible] employed as a cook has for [illegible] so as not to be able to mingle [illegible] He is now kept confined in a [illegible] which has only a little opening through [illegible] is passed in the second story of a [illegible] on A street between [illegible] Ferrish has detailed a policeman [illegible] matter this morning and in all [illegible] leper will be removed to the county [illegible]

[illegible]—Thomas Bucol, the driver of [illegible] who was thrown to the pavement [illegible] thereby fracturing his skull is [illegible] and his physicians say he is cer[illegible] his case may be regarded as a [illegible] fracture was at first considered very [illegible] many probabilities that it [illegible] fatally. On the contrary however [illegible] quietly and thanks to his [illegible] Bucol will soon be able to leave [illegible]

[illegible] COURT.—Judge Deady will deliver an [illegible] court this morning in the case of the [illegible] E. L. Company vs. School District [illegible] the demurrer of the defendants, [illegible] the bill.

BENEFIT NIGHT AT THE TIVOLI.—This evening closes the opera season at the Tivoli. Business has been very good since the return of the [illegible] from the Sound and loss of salary through [illegible] has been recovered. [illegible] every member of the company. First in the pro[illegible] will be the second act of Olivett. This will be followed by [illegible] by Miss King [illegible] Mr. Dammasch baritone solo by Mr. [illegible] banjo accompaniment [illegible] tambourine dance by Miss Poole and a [illegible]—very short—lecture by Mr. Stevens with a practical illustration of the art of making up [illegible] for the stage. The entertainment will conclude with the [illegible] The Mascot. As they say [illegible] Every one should go to at [illegible]

ASTORIA [illegible]—The W[illegible] brought in two teams from the Astoria fire depart[illegible] [illegible] to Albany to-morrow morning. [illegible] Astoria Engine [illegible] Al J. Mason [illegible] Grant [illegible] George W. Wood and [illegible]

THE O. [illegible] LEASE.—From private sources it is learned that matters pertaining to the proposed lease [illegible] Harris [illegible] as he was leaving the [illegible] per cent thereafter [illegible] that basis. That is the exact status of the matter now.

THERE IS A REMEDY.—Complaint comes that a lot of boys stark naked who were bathing from the east bank of the Willamette near the foot of Ross island followed a party of young ladies who happened to be strolling in the neighborhood Saturday afternoon. Not only did the scoundrels follow them but used the vilest language imaginable. The statement is from a gentleman who was an eye witness. He wants to know whether this thing shall go on or whether a vigilance committee shall be formed and the neighborhood rid of an utter nuisance. Yes let it go on one more day. Organize a cowhide committee and apply the remedy. One application will suffice.

A STRAW FROM JACKSON COUNTY.—Those who think that all the heavy wheat of western Oregon is grown in the Willamette and Umpqua valleys want to read the following from Rogue river. It is official. Hall brothers who have a farm six miles from Jacksonville threshed out forty three acres which yielded actual measure 2336 bushels which is a trifle over fifty four bushels to the acre. It was clean plump and hard and will class A 1 in any market in the world.

ATTACK REPULSED.—M. F. Spencer and W. P. Berger were out for a drive back of East Portland yesterday. They took along their dogs and guns for protection and returned with a score of grouse and pheasants in their wagon. It is no use talking: when grouse and pheasants attack men driving peacefully along the highway they must expect to suffer the penalty even if it is Sunday.

IT MUST HAVE BEEN A GREAT TIME.—The Victoria Times printed the following special Saturday afternoon: Portland Aug. 15.—It is very hot and sultry here to-day. The cricket contest is being waged about four miles from the city and the game is reported to be close and exciting but no definite report is yet in. Quite an interest is taken in the game by sporting men.

YESTERDAY'S TROT.—A fair crowd witnessed the trot best three in five at City View park yesterday between Startle, Kelly and Florence I. Six heats were trotted. Startle winning. Florence I. took the first and third heats, Kelly the fourth, and Startle the second, fifth and sixth. Best time [illegible]

BLAINE'S SHOTGUN MARRIAGE

A Gentleman Familiar With the Facts Tells How the Story Started

Yesterday a prominent Portlander who has spent a good many years in Washington and was until late terms with a bitter personal enemy of Blaine told an OREGONIAN reporter the following story of Blaine's marriage. The facts were obtained by this enemy who was diligent in search of matter to use against Blaine and when he learned them gave up hunting for ammunition of that kind. The story is:

When Blaine was a young man he taught school in Kentucky. In the same neighborhood there were six or eight school masters and school mistresses, all of them from the east and all of them young people. Blaine being jolly and bright was a favorite with the young ladies and the one whom he chose to escort to any of the social gatherings was always the envied of all the others. Blaine paid some attention to a young woman who was a resident of the neighborhood bordering on old maidhood. She had been passed by so often that she feared she would forever remain single. With Blaine came hope and she whispered to her parents and intimate friends that while she was not formally engaged to him she soon would be. About this time Miss Stanwood came in: the neighborhood as a school teacher and Blaine paid her attention. When vacation came Miss Stanwood returned to her home in Maine and Blaine went back to Pennsylvania. During vacation they kept up a correspondence which ripened into an engagement. In the fall he went to Maine and was married at [illegible]

The [illegible] maid chagrined at her disappointment and subject to the taunts of the young folks in the neighborhood started the shotgun marriage story and it grew into the village gossip.

BRIEF MENTION

The cricket match will be resumed at 11 o'clock this morning.

The steamship Gypsy sails for Yaquina bay tomorrow night.

The three hotel waiters charged with larceny will have an examination in the police court to-day.

The Wide West brought up the largest passenger load of the season last night. There were nearly 400.

What beat am I on to-night, captain, facetiously asked an ex-policeman who still persists in hanging about the city jail. Dead beat, promptly responded Captain Hair.

The body of the late James B. B[illegible] embalmed and enclosed in a metallic casket arrived here yesterday from Central City, Colorado, and was taken to the family residence.

Henry S. Holloway who had served forty five days in the county jail for stealing hides and tallow was discharged from that institution on Saturday. Wm. Ferrard was also released having served twelve days for assault.

PERSONAL.

Mr. John Muir and family are at the Esmond.

Judge Sherman, the lawyer who figured conspicuously in the [illegible] trial is at the Esmond accompanied by his wife and daughter.

Mr. Fred Bronson returned yesterday from St. Paul. He was recently appointed material agent for the Northern Pacific and will have his headquarters here.

Captain J. E. O'Brien left yesterday for Victoria and will [illegible] the Umatilla which will be [illegible] to San Francisco as soon as she is raised. He will then return to Portland and sail to Hong Kong [illegible]

AMUSEMENTS.

[illegible] last night of the Tivoli.

[illegible] appears to-night [illegible] Charlotte Thompson in Jane Eyre.

The [illegible] concerts seem to eclipse in drawing power over the [illegible] poor man's plaster [illegible] Saturday nights and once almost filled their lot, corner Fourth and Pine and the more orderly or intelligent assemblage is seldom seen even at an in[illegible] performance. To-night and to-morrow night at 8 o'clock.

RECEPTIONS TO GOVERNOR SQUIRES

From the Olympia [illegible] the following account [illegible] of the reception [illegible] Governor W. C. Squire [illegible] Washington territory.

W[illegible] evening a [illegible] was received [illegible] city on [illegible] [illegible] Governor Squire [illegible] Mr. Wheeler [illegible] Mr. Newell [illegible]

[illegible]

[illegible] to-night [illegible] most hearty and [illegible] has ever taken place [illegible] the crowd [illegible] at 8 o'clock Governor Squire [illegible] platform accompanied by ex-Governor Newell, Secretary Owings, Auditor Reed and Treasurer Ford [illegible] the last named gentleman [illegible] ex-Governor Newell would introduce [illegible] the new executive to the audience and the people of the territory. Ex-Governor Newell's remarks were pertinent to the occasion and well chosen showing that he [illegible] goes into private life with the kindliest feelings toward our new executive and the people of the entire territory. Governor Squire's reply was characterized by that dignity and elegance of delivery, that choice of words and phrases that stamps him as a man whose broad views, culture, education and experience [illegible] business life will give to [illegible] an administration of which [illegible] territory the Union may be proud. Both speakers were [illegible] applauded throughout their speeches and the audience was very favorably impressed [illegible] commendation of the new governor by our departing executive and the remarks of the new governor.

After this formal introduction Governor Squires took a position on the floor of the hall and the large concourse of people were presented to him by personal introductions. The governor was supported by the territorial officials who as the long line of people passed were introduced to him by them. This ceremony occupied about an hour. After and during the latter part of the introductions those present were entertained by songs from a quartette who rendered their music in a very pleasing manner. One of the very pleasant features of the meeting was the presentation of the Capital Guards as a body of the territorial troops to Governor Squires by Commander O'Brien.

The feeling of the meeting was that it was an entire success and that the new governor had come among us to be one of us and to work with us for the great interests of the territory that we have so much at heart.

THE EAST SIDE.

HAND THRASHED

Clement Roork while running a threshing machine at Thomas Gully's place on Columbia slough yesterday accidentally got his left hand under the cylinder resulting in the [illegible] [illegible] entirely torn from the hand [illegible] lower joint fractured. It was taken to the office of Dr. Rafferty to whom absence his injuries were attended to by Dr. Flynn of Corvallis who fortunately happened to be present.

NOTES

The new brick building for the Standard Oil company on S and First streets is receiving the roof.

Prof. S. T. Hock and wife went to La Camas on Saturday. They will return to-day or to-morrow.

The sinking of the bottom [illegible] road crossing has necessitated the raising of D. Sullen & company's building [illegible] a foot.

As was expected the Coates case [illegible] battery was compromised so that the trial set for Saturday in Justice C[illegible]'s court did not come off.

W. W. Diggles is the first to rebuild in the burnt district. The railway being now completed other buildings will follow as soon as lumber can be obtained.

Henry F[illegible] charged with assault and battery on the person of Mrs. Rice appeared in Justice Simpson's court Saturday morning with his attorney Rufus Mallory and pleaded not guilty. The case was set for trial at 3 o'clock to-morrow.

The East Portland camp on the Sandy are having a fine time in hunting, fishing and improving their performances. The city mishap was [illegible] on Saturday when Bob Gillespie after straining [illegible] falling down a steep hill fell in the river [illegible] endeavoring to climb [illegible] to the water's edge. [illegible] is evidently awkward to him without a body in.

Al Irwin has recovered his gold watch which disappeared with his vest on [illegible] By this means the vest got mixed with the City [illegible] uniforms and Sam Hughes [illegible] Capt. Mooney took it home [illegible] knowing what it contained. The mistake and the watch were discovered [illegible] to Capt. Mooney Saturday. [illegible] sincere thanks of the owner [illegible] the reward offered by him.

DOMESTIC DISPATCHES.

A Great Fire Sweeps the Town of Anoka, Minnesota.

THE LOSSES ESTIMATED AT A MILLION

Rush Tevis, the Injured Husband of St. Louis, Kills Himself—More of the Morey Letter Forgery—General News.

From The Sunday Oregonian.

ST PAUL, Aug. 16.—For the fourth time in its history the city of Anoka is fire-stricken, and the entire business portion, for the second time, is entirely wiped out of existence. Ruin is widespread and extensive, and at this time it is utterly impossible to more than roughly approximate the great loss, which is placed by the most conservative at a million dollars at least.

From the Congregational church, at the corner of Main street and Third avenue, west to the river, and from Monroe street north to Van Buren street, is nought but a heap of smoking ashes and blackened ruins.

An alarm was given shortly after 2 o'clock this morning. It was found to be a fire in Kennedy & Vandervoider's skating rink, situated in the rear of the postoffice and the high school building. Although the department was quickly at work it was soon evident the flames were beyond control.

In a few moments Campbell's brick block, in which the postoffice was situated, was in flames, followed almost simultaneously by the appearance of fire in the high school and [illegible] east. The flames communicated to the elegant new brick block belonging to H. L. [illegible], and from there, across Second avenue, to H. [illegible]'s dry goods store, and across Main street to a row of wooden structures occupied by various branches of trade; up Second avenue, taking several [illegible] and the Merchant's hotel, down Main street on the north side, destroying Plummer's dry and [illegible] store, Tichnor & [illegible], Bean's boot and shoe store, and so on, until the river barred its course.

IN OTHER DIRECTIONS.

While devastation was being wrought in this direction the appalling flames leaped from the wooden buildings on the north side of Main street and enveloped the handsome and stately structure lately erected by W. D. Washburn, and in which were situated the First National bank and the elegant Washburn opera house.

The whole city seemed to be ablaze at once. Up and down both sides of Main street, from Third avenue to the river, and along both sides of Second avenue, from Van Buren to Monroe, the pitiless flames swept irresistibly. From block to block the fire speedily went its way along Bridge square on the east side, sweeping away Daniel's boot and shoe store, Alser & Wicklund's dry goods store, the Anoka Union brick block, Peters' drug store, and then across Jackson street, diagonally, to the great Lincoln flouring mills and elevator, consuming also a smaller flouring mill near the bridge, two planing mills, one shingle mill, dry kiln, lumber shed and office, all belonging to W. D. Washburn & Co., the flames being brought to a standstill ninety feet from the mammoth Washburn saw and shingle mills.

NO LIVES LOST.

From the point where the fire commenced to Lincoln mills it went eastward to the corner of Second avenue and Jackson street, there joining the section of flames which jumped May street and tackled the James hotel and stables, blacksmith shop and jail, exhausting itself at the corner of Jackson street and Third avenue.

That branch of the great conflagration which took its way on Third avenue destroyed everything to Monroe street, where it was brought under control.

No lives were lost and no serious accident occurred, though there was a scene of the wildest and most uncontrollable confusion. Men fell exhausted by heat and smoke, while women fainted, appalled by the terrible visitation.

The losses and insurance cannot be definitely ascertained for several days. Washburn & Co. have insurance for $143,500. Their loss is believed to be fully $175,000, possibly $200,000.

Assistance was summoned from St. Paul and Minneapolis, but reached the doomed city too late to be of service, except in saving Washburn's mammoth saw and shingle mills.

Blackfeet Indians Not Starving.

NEW YORK, Aug 16.—Special.—The Commercial's Washington special says: "The story that Blackfeet Indians in Montana are starving is believed here to have been started by traders in Helena, who wanted to dispose of their supplies without the formality of a contract. The Indian bureau has received a telegram from the Blackfeet Indian agent that he was not short of supplies. It is also learned that the resignation of Indian Commissioner Price is not due to any difference of opinion with his superior officer, but mainly to his dissatisfaction with the onerous and thankless duties of the office, and its inadequate salary."

Striking Bricklayers Hold a Meeting.

CHICAGO, Aug. 16.—Striking bricklayers of the city to the number of 1500 who ceased work a month ago, owing to a reduction of their wages from $2 50 to $1 62½ per day, held a mass meeting this afternoon. A proposition to send a committee to arbitrate the matter was voted down, and it was decided to have a procession and mass meeting in Market square to-morrow afternoon, when it is expected all bricklayers affected by the reduction, to the number of nearly 5000, will be present.

Yellow Fever at Key West.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—Dr. Wilkerson at Key West telegraphs [illegible] case of yellow fever there is in the ninth day of the disease and the patient [illegible] recover. It is a sporadic case and [illegible] to cause no uneasiness. No other cases are reported. Arrangements have been made for the transfer of hospital tents from New Orleans to Key West, if needed.

An Old Town Celebrates.

IPSWICH, Mass., Aug. 16.—The 250th anniversary of the incorporation of Ipswich was observed to-day. The houses were all decorated and the procession was the largest seen in years. In it were Governor Robinson and staff, Congressman Stone and Mayor Rev. Parker Pierce. The literary exercises included an address by Gorran Haskell, reading of [illegible] and poems by Harriet Prescott Spofford and [illegible] Robinson.

Of Interest to Liquor Men.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 16.—The commissioner of internal revenue has [illegible] until December 6 the time ordered for [illegible] for bonded spirits. At the expiration of that time the warehousing bond shall take effect.

SUICIDE OF RUSH TEVIS.

The Wronged Husband of St. Louis Shoots Himself through the Head.

ST LOUIS, August 16.—Rush H. Tevis, who shot and seriously wounded Frank T. Inglehart, two years ago, for too intimate relations with his wife, went to his home at No. 2824 St. Louis avenue about 10 last night. He had some angry words with his wife, remarking that he thought it would be better for them all if they should die—meaning himself, wife and child. He took a large pistol from the washstand drawer and made a demonstration toward his wife. She divined his purpose and fled hastily from the room. Tevis then placed the pistol to his own head and sent a 38-calibre bullet through his brain and fell dead upon the floor. Mrs. Tevis is suffering from hysterics, and physicians will not allow reporters to see her. Tevis brought out his business partner yesterday. He had been drinking last night, and was in a highly nervous and excited condition when he went home. He was 32 years of age, and of a very nervous temperament. His wife is a daughter of General Reese, and was involved in an unfortunate affair with young Inglehart two years ago, for which her husband obtained a divorce. Some months later they met in Chicago, became reconciled and were remarried and have since been living together.

VERDICT OF SUICIDE.

ST. LOUIS Aug. 16.—At the coroner's inquest on the body of Rush H. Tevis to-day Mrs. Tevis stated that business troubles had caused the suicide. She said Tevis came home last night very drunk and very despondent, and said it would be better for both to die. He pointed a pistol at her, but she ran out of the room, and heard the shot which killed her husband fired immediately after she got out. Mrs. Tevis gave her testimony in a very self-contained and unemotional manner. She stated very positively that jealousy had nothing to do with the crime.

Other witnesses were examined who corroborated Mrs. Tevis' statement. The verdict was suicide. The funeral occurs to-morrow. It is said by persons likely to know that differences between Tevis and his family over his re-marriage with his wife after the divorce were a part of the trouble which caused the rash act.

CRIMINAL CALENDAR.

A BIG SWINDLER DODGING THE LAW.

NEW YORK, Aug 16.—Gerald T Tulley, an officer of the Preston Banking Company of Preston, England, was arrested in this city June 21, in a civil suit for the recovery of £150,000, with which it was alleged he absconded to this country. Since then he has been imprisoned, in default of $70,000 bail. To-day he was brought before Judge Barrett, upon a writ of habeas corpus. After his arrest in the civil suit Tulley was brought before the United States commissioner, on a warrant issued upon extradition proceedings, upon a charge of forgery, and was committed. Upon the same day there was filed a bond in the civil suit, with two sureties. Upon the appeal the commissioner's decision was overruled and Tulley was discharged. As he was leaving the court room he was again arrested, upon bail surrender. Counsel for Tulley contended that the bail bond was void, as it had been made without the consent of Tulley. He asserted that the bond had been given in the interest of attorneys for the bank, by persons connected with their office, and he argued that the surrender of Tulley to the United States marshall by the sheriff was a waiver of the order of arrest in the civil suit. In reference to the bail bond, Judge Barrett said: "A more scandalous thing, in my judgment, never was done. It is the most extraordinary thing I ever heard of in the annals of jurisprudence. It is a very unfortunate position for some one."

AN INFERNAL MACHINE DISCOVERED.

BURLINGTON, Ia., Aug. 16.—Early yesterday morning W. E. Blake, who has been active as an attorney in the prosecution of saloon keepers since the prohibitory law went into effect, was startled from his bed by a bright flash of light and a sharp explosion. He thought but little of the matter at the time, but an examination later in the day found a machine of destruction filled with dynamite, which he now believes was prepared with a view of blowing up his residence, but which failed to explode. Mr. Blake says he has no known enemy, and that in the prosecutions he had been courteously treated by saloon keepers.

NAVAL COURT OF INQUIRY.

WASHINGTON Aug. 16.—The naval court of inquiry, appointed to make investigation into frauds in the navy department, will probably not reassemble before the middle of October. It is asserted that the investigation has established the fact that frauds involving about $1,000,000 were perpetrated in the bureau of medicine and surgery, long before Surgeon General Wales' time, and were continued under him, and that [illegible] were no frauds in [illegible] [illegible].

THE ARCTIC HORROR.

PRIVATE HENRY TO BE EXHUMED.

LINCOLN Neb., Aug. 16.—The following dispatch, sent out from here to-day, explains itself:

LINCOLN, Neb., Aug. 16.

Coroner Robinson, Long Island City, N. Y.: I see by the public prints that you have addressed me regarding the exhuming and examination of my brother's remains. It is my desire that the full facts be known. You will please have the body exhumed and examined as soon as possible.

DORA BUCK.

Miss Buck was almost heart-broken at the report that her brother was shot for stealing rations, and has refused to see a reporter. The possibility that such reports are untrue, since the Kislingbury developments, have revived her spirits, and she is now very anxious that the matter be sifted to the bottom, believing that it will vindicate her brother's reputation.

POLITICAL NEWS AND GOSSIP.

More of the Infamous Morey Letter Forgery—Press Comments.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—It seems that the sensation promised us yesterday by the Tribune and the Star is a revelation regarding the origin of the famous Morey letter. John H. Davenport, in whose hands the matter was placed at the time, has succeeded in tracing the whole matter, from its inception to the end, successfully. Davenport adduces a mass of proofs upon which he bases the following charges: That the character, object and origin of the Morey letter were known to Chairman Barnum of the democratic national committee in 1880, prior to its publication; that Barnum, William L. Scott, Abraham S. Hewitt, Rossina Cleveland and Bradley B. Smalley united in giving the Morey letter forgery endorsement of a documentary character and wide circulation; that this was for the purpose of misrepresenting the views of Garfield, which, Davenport asserts, were the reverse of those expressed in the letter; that Henry H. Hadley of New York city was the forger of the letters in question, and that he has admitted its authorship, and also the authorship of the original draft.

The forgery of the Morey letter was not a crime in the law, and no adequate punishment for the offense can be administered. Since that time, however, a bill has been prepared which covers the ground in such cases, and it has already passed into a law, by act of the legislature of this state.

FROM THE "TRIBUNE."

Tribune Editorial: "Davenport's book fastens responsibility upon active men at the democratic national headquarters in 1880. W. H. Barnum was chairman of the national committee, and he is now in 1884. [illegible] Prince was secretary and Charles J. Canda was treasurer, and they are now in 1884. Edward B Dickson was official stenographer of the secretary of the executive committee, and he is now. The disclosures of Davenport give the people warning to expect still more daring and infamous forgeries within the next three months, for the purpose of electing that 'pure man,' Cleveland, and securing 'good government.'

"Late in September, 1880, Chairman Barnum became alarmed about the success of the Republican campaign on the tariff question, and to General Estee he suggested that something should be prepared for use in a brief hand bill or dodger, setting forth what he could be made to appear offensive to the Republican portion and Chinese cheap labor and Estee conferred at once with Hadley, and what purported to be an interview with Garfield was at first concocted. This was taken to headquarters and to the private rooms of Barnum and Dickinson. It came back changed to the form of a letter, with the important phrases preserved. This is identical with the original suggestion for a campaign dodger, and the changes were made at the headquarters and Davenport has them. A startling fact is that the precise words of the important phrases of this paper are those afterward found in the forged letter as published.

"That which will attract most attention is a mass of closely linked evidence connecting the democratic national committee with every step in this succession of infamous crimes.

"Barnum introduced Hadley as 'one of our staunch and trustworthy friends' to the democratic committeemen in Maryland, and the result was another forged affidavit. Going into another struggle, with Barnum again leading the hosts of 'purity and reform,' it is well to be warned of what things he is capable."

FROM THE "STAR."

The Star, Kelly's organ, says of the subject: Few persons will read without a thrill of shame and indignation this remarkable history. After a patient and unremitting investigation the mystery has at last been cleared away and the authors, circulators and abettors of the most notorious political forgery on record stand arraigned at the bar of public opinion. What the popular verdict must be on the facts as here presented, must be left to the expression of the American people themselves. That men occupying the rank of statesmen and leaders in a great political party, whose past history is full of honor, are now arraigned, is not a fault of the party. Their sins must be laid at their individual doors, and if the judgment that must now be passed upon them shall be their condemnation hereafter, they have themselves alone to blame.

LOGAN'S MOVEMENTS.

CHAUTAUQUA, Aug. 16.—General Logan arrived at noon and received a cordial greeting as he landed. He was received at Mayville by Lewis Miller, president of the Chautauqua assembly, and other leading citizens, escorted by the Young Men's Blaine and Logan club of Jamestown, and escorted to the hotel, where he was greeted by cheers from a large number of ladies and gentlemen. He was addressed by Rev. John H. Vincent, superintendent of instruction, as follows:

General Logan, it gives me great pleasure to welcome you to our summer resort on Lake Chautauqua. We have here people from all portions of the land. The representatives of the Grand Army of the Republic have just been with us. It is our purpose to diffuse what some good worthy ideas through this great land, and to promulgate culture to the homes of all people.

General Logan responded as follows:

Dr. Vincent and Gentlemen: The fame of your great institution has become world wide. It has sent out to the American people its rills of influence and knowledge, until it aggregates a mighty flood, blessing all portions of the country. I am glad to be here, and, indeed, to meet with you to-day, and, in closing, I may say I have hope that your influence here in Chautauqua may have its proper effect upon us as well as upon others.

Three cheers were given to General Logan and three for Vincent.

NATIONAL ANTI-MONOPOLISTS.

The [illegible] [illegible] vote has [illegible] the [illegible] for the nomination of Alanson M. West of Mississippi for vice president [illegible] [illegible].

The executive committee [illegible] Mr. West [illegible] vice president by a unanimous vote, and then went into secret session to outline certain plans for the campaign.

A committee consisting of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] [illegible] to notify [illegible] [illegible] of his nomination [illegible]. The chairman and secretary were ordered to issue a circular address [illegible] [illegible]. There were some [illegible] [illegible] of the "people's party," which was referred to a committee. The secretary was instructed to enter into correspondence with representatives of all anti-monopoly parties in the various states, with a view of securing union of the various organizations on a Butler electoral ticket.

A REPUDIATION RESOLUTION INTRODUCED.

RICHMOND, Va., Aug. 16.—In the senate to-day Mr. [illegible] introduced a resolution looking to the total repudiation of the state debt. The preamble sets forth that every proper and reasonable effort has repeatedly been made by the state to effect a settlement with the holders of its bonds, which have met with uncompromising resistance, opposition and technical quibbling, and the state's responsibility, patience and resources are now believed exhausted in efforts to maintain the credit of Virginia; that no substantial equivalent of valuable consideration can be shown upon which these bonds were issued; that the holders have not benefited the state of Virginia, but are merely adventurous speculators, who have already received from the bonds much more than their original cost; that a syndicate has been formed by these speculators, for the purpose of perpetuating legal prosecution of the people of Virginia, and preventing a settlement of this unproved debt, so that they may not have their real interest, but may continue to draw interest thereon; that certain debts are absolutely prohibited by article 16, section 1, of the federal constitution; that we express our unalterable opposition to the payment of any part of this alleged debt, or interest thereon, and the auditor of public accounts is instructed forthwith to refuse payment of interest or any bonds alleged to be held against Virginia. The resolution went over till Monday.

PACIFIC COAST.

Crocker and the O. and C.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—In spite of Mr. Charles Crocker's denial that the Central Pacific people have an eye upon the Oregon and California road, with the purpose of buying or leasing it, the story as telegraphed from Portland is pretty generally believed. Discussion of the matter has lead to a great deal of talk among business men, and many leading men are outspoken in demanding that the Central Pacific company get possession of the road, and to assist its customers in retaining the Oregon trade. The loss of business to San Francisco through the opening of the Northern Pacific is very great; so great that it is found there will be great distress unless something is done to relieve the situation, and it is argued that if the Central Pacific would get possession of the Oregon & California, and make rates that would enable merchants here to regain their lost business in the north, it would be a great help to the city, and largely increase the business of the former road. The OREGONIAN correspondent attempted to get some expression from Mr. Crocker, but he declined to say anything for publication, or in any way to intimate the purposes of his company.

Much Ado About Nothing.

SAN FRANCISCO, August 16.—[Special.]—The folly of a teacher in the public schools has made a tempest in a teapot during the past few days. Professor Sanger, of the girls' high school, was giving his class a lesson in history, and the subject happened to be that of Luther and the reformation. Professor Sanger, who is a strong believer in Lutheranism, and a rabid anti-Catholic, went into all the details of the reformation, from a practical standpoint, and finally arranged Catholic young ladies of the class against Protestants, and ordered them to debate certain questions pertaining to the reformation. The debate waxed warm, and the professor took a most vigorous part in it himself, supporting the Protestant side of the question, and making assertions and charges against the Catholic church and its faith that were of such a character that Catholic young ladies informed their parents of his conduct. The facts reached the ears of Archbishop Alemany and Rev. Father Hugh Gallagher, and they immediately demanded the trial and expulsion of the teacher who had violated the constitution of the United States and of the state of California. Formal charges were made last evening by Father Gallagher, and the matter will end doubtless in the dismissal of Sanger.

Double Tragedy.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 16.—Shortly after 3 o'clock this afternoon D. Hasslop, a saloon keeper at the North Pacific hotel, at the northeast corner of Drumm and Jackson streets, was fatally shot in the breast by Fred. W. Sewart, a sailor and ex-convict. The latter then placed his revolver to his own forehead and fired a ball into his brain. Hasslop died almost instantly. He leaves a wife. The shooting occurred in Hasslop's barroom. Sewart was removed to the receiving hospital in a dying condition. The trouble is said to have occurred over Sewart's labor on a house that Hasslop was building.

STATE DISPATCHES.

Safe Robbed

CORVALLIS, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The store of A. Cauthorn & Son, dealers in general merchandise, was entered by burglars last night and the safe broken open and robbed. The thieves effected an entrance to the store, which was of brick, by digging a hole through the wall in the rear end of the building. They got away with about $70 in coin. The safe was a Tilton & McFarland, and was opened in the usual way by digging a hole through the side. Those who have seen the work pronounce it the work of professional burglars. Nothing else has been missed from the store.

WASHINGTON TERRITORY.

Republican Convention at Colfax.

COLFAX, Aug. 16.—[Special.]—The first republican convention in the territory was held here to-day. The delegates were not instructed, but will favor J. M. Armstrong for delegate to congress.

BIG REFORM DEMONSTRATION IN SCOTLAND.

Great Excitement in Mexico Over the Arrest of Conspirators Against the Government—The Cholera Epidemic—Etc.

From The Sunday Oregonian.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A Times dispatch from Foo Chow says: France has rejected the mediation of any power. China refuses to pay the indemnity demanded by France and has declared war. Admiral [illegible] [illegible] 2,000 men from Tonquin. [illegible] [illegible] with two hundred [illegible] sealed orders. [illegible] Chinese [illegible] of [illegible] [illegible] French and Chinese war ships have steam up and decks cleared for action. Chinese dispatches declare they are prepared for war, but as a matter of fact the condition of their troops, forts, etc., is no better than last April.

THE FRENCH TO ADVANCE.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A Standard dispatch from [illegible], dated August 5, says: The French will advance in a few days. [illegible] the transport [illegible] [illegible] have arrived. [illegible] of the coast, which has hitherto been very slovenly, will shortly be made strict.

[illegible] [illegible] [illegible].

PARIS, Aug. 16.—Neither the French government nor the Chinese legation is aware that war has been declared by China, as has been asserted in the Foo Chow dispatch to the London Times this morning. The Chinese legation has not called its flag.

ENGLAND MEDIATING.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—Through Marquis Tseng, Chinese ambassador to England, and the British embassy at Pekin, Earl Granville is urging China to concede an indemnity demanded by France, provided the French fleet shall immediately leave Ke Lung. It is considered doubtful if Prime Minister Ferry would surrender Kelung, on payment of the indemnity, as it is believed the real object in France in making the claim was to secure permanent possession of the coal mines of Kelung. It is reported that in case France should refuse to give up Kelung on payment of the indemnity, England has promised to [illegible] [illegible] in support of China. It is confidently asserted that no offer of mediation has been made to France by England, Germany or America.

DENIALS.

PARIS, Aug. 16.—It is semi-officially announced that France has not rejected mediation in the Franco-Chinese difficulty. On the other hand, it is stated that no one has offered mediation.

LONDON, Aug 16.—A dispatch from Paris to the Exchange Telegraph company denies the report that China has declared war against France. It is expected, on the other hand, that negotiations will be resumed.

MEXICO.

MEXICAN CONSPIRATORS ARRESTED.

ST LOUIS, Aug 16.—A special from the City of Mexico says: Forty persons in all have been arrested here in connection with a conspiracy. General Poesa, chief of the artillery department, and General Rebergary have been imprisoned. Rebergary commanded the garrison at Vera Cruz under Diaz' administration. General Chavarria, whereabouts is unknown. He has been removed from the barracks. His son is out looking for him. All prisoners have been turned over to Juan Perez Deleon, first judge of this district. The authorities deny that any prisoners have been sent to Vera Cruz or Yucatan. The conspiracy is reported to have been in progress for about a year, and was under the leadership of Jardon, editor of the La Opinion, and two colonels. Baldic and Rodriguez, government detectives, are said to have obtained a list of the conspirators in Jardon's possession. General Alatorre has not been arrested. The plan of the conspiracy is said to have been to overthrow the government as in 1876, under President Lerdo. It is thought the cause was betrayed. An accomplice in Jardon's office was arrested and his wife kept in close confinement.

REPORTS EXAGGERATED.

NEW YORK, Aug 16.—A dispatch from the City of Mexico, sent directly to the associated press, referring to the report via St. Louis, that a great conspiracy against the government had been unearthed, says they are in circulation, but greatly exaggerated. It is true a few arrests have been made, but the so-called conspiracy is so ridiculously weak that it does not merit the name.

ENGLAND'S TREATY WITH MEXICO.

LONDON, Aug 16.—According to the provisional treaty between Mexico and England, Mexico has conceded to England "most favored nation" treatment for five years, beginning January, 1885. No provision is made for a settlement of the claims of English bondholders, nor for payment of the conversion.

BANQUET GIVEN.

NEW YORK, Aug. 16.—A banquet was given last night at Delmonico's by the American Yacht club, at which the honored guests were the officers of the Greely relief expedition. About a hundred people sat down to the table. Frank R. Lawrence presided. [illegible] right were [illegible] [illegible], and on his left Major General Whipple, General Louis Fitzgerald, Dr. Norvin Green, George F. Peabody, H. F. Shaw; [illegible] and John F. Miller were among the guests. The tables were elaborately and beautifully decorated, and the walls hung with flags and bunting, conspicuous among which were the banners which were presented to the Bear and Thetis and Bear prior to their departure for the Arctic regions.

HANLAN DEFEATED.

LONDON, Aug. 16.—A dispatch from Sydney, New South Wales, reports that the sculling match between Hanlan and Beach, for the championship of the world and £500 a side, took place to-day on the Paramatta river. Beach won by seven lengths.

INTERNATIONAL CRICKET.

Portland Wins the First Match—The Visitors Lead in the Second.

Saturday the match between Victoria and Portland was resumed. Campbell, the "not out" of the day before, and Pooley, faced the bowling of Bourne and Arthurs, but those two gentlemen and Bresley, Eberts, Snowden and Drake, failed to save our visitors from a crushing defeat of forty runs and an inning to spare.

Immediately after the conclusion of a capital luncheon provided by the Portland club, the second match was commenced, in the presence of a large crowd of spectators. Victoria having won the toss, elected to bat, and with 7 wickets down, had scored [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]. Up to this point the Webfoots [illegible] [illegible] their own way, but a change brought Eberts to the front, who, by good sound cricket, raised the Victoria total to 77, not a large score for Portland to beat, but large enough, as events proved, owing to the brilliant catches by Combe, Drake, Eberts and Bresley. The remarkable batting of Readman is worthy of mention. The innings resulted in a total for Portland of 48 runs, thus leaving our visitors 29 runs to the good on the first innings of the second match.

The Northwestern band was in attendance, and by their excellent playing caused the many ladies present to spend a pleasant afternoon. The match will be resumed at 11 o'clock on Monday morning. Following is the score of the first innings of the second match:
